BRUSASCO COME-BACK

BY GREG RUSSELL

OUSTED Australian Soccer Federation chairman Ian Brusasco could be recruited to head Queensland's return to the National Soccer League.

A number of leading Queensland officials believe Brusasco cannot be allowed to drift out of the code after losing the ASF chairmanship to NSW's John Constantine.

Brusasco has ruled out a return to the Queensland Soccer Federation, where he has served as president and vice-president since its inception, but has privately indicated his interest in the NSL promotion push.

"I've been in the game too long just to walk away," he said.

"I have long been a supporter of franchis-ing in the NSL and I am fully aware of the urgency of getting Queensland representation back into the national competition."

Two groups are formulating proposals for a Queensland entry into the NSL, one backed by the QSF, the other by former Rochdale president John Hancock, who lost the 1988 QSF presidency vote to Wal Dann.

The QSF's proposal is based on a broad support plan involving clubs in its top two divisions, while the Hancock proposal is a private entry.

While he was ASF chairman, Brusasco understandably was unable to indicate which of the two he preferred.

That situation may change now, and it could be a matter of which consortium contacts Brusasco first.

"At the moment, I'm enjoying my golf," Brusasco said.

"I had one of my best rounds in a long time the day after the ASF meeting."

"I haven't really thought about it much, but my door always has been and always will be open to soccer people."

Recruiting Brusasco could be the vital edge for either consortium.

He is recognised as one of Queensland sport's most respected and astute administrators, while his business contacts are unrivalled.

"Having Brusasco as the head of your consortium would give it instant credibility," said one official.

Hair's breadth to decide Award

BY GREG BLAKE

THE very first ASW-Bayswater Indoor Soccer Centre Player of the Year Award is set to be decided in the very last home and away clashes of the season.

form this week in the final round will probably determine the winner as the race for the grand trophy and $300 cheque, compliments of the Bayswater Indoor Soccer Centre, comes right down to the wire.

John Filan was still clinging to his slender lead with former leaders Alan Davidson (Melbourne Croatia), Graham Arnold (Sydney Croatia) and Tommy McCulloch (Marconi) hot on his tail.

Filan's Round 24 votes were not included in this, our final update before the winner is announced.

The postponed Melita — St George clash wasn't played in time for us to get the votes into the computer, so Filan has to sweat on a full three rounds of points scoring before his fate is decided.

The wait will be a doubly anxious one for Filan as the talented newcomer is also in line to pick up the special goalkeeping award sponsored by Reusch Australia.

To be in contention for the award a player must poll votes in at least 20 games at season's end.

Players to have remained above the six vote average to this stage of the season are deemed to have had an exceptional season.

The leader board after Round 24 was:

Final Five is a winner

BY GREG BLAKE

THIS will be my last world (I promise) on the 'great debate' of change versus tradition for Australian Soccer.

The latest exchange came courtesy of Victorian Soccer Federation executive director George Wallace, who managed to spark quite a discussion over a quiet lunch recently.

Wallace admitted that he was a stickler for the "traditions" of the game and, as such, was against the moves for a final five system of deciding any championship.

The debate raged for 20 minutes with George coming up with some quite compelling reasons why the old first-past-the-post system should always be maintained.

But, as always, my final question was whether the last two QNSL grand finals had been for the good of the game.

Whilst not conceding that the Final Five system was the way to go, George reluctantly admitted that the finals of 1988 and 1989 had, indeed, been just that.

And to me that is the argument — whether we radically change the game or keep changes to a bare minimum, whatever we do must be for the good of the game.

And if, for the good of the game, we rankle those of another era or from another more traditional soccer-playing country then too bad.

Few people tolerate change very well and, with the example of soccer in the USA in the 1970s to follow, it is clear that untimely and inappropriate change can be disastrous.

All I argue is that any proposal which seems likely to make a significant improvement to the game in this country (as the Final Five system most certainly has in the case of the NSL) should be implemented without hesitation.

The key word is significant and any debate and discussion on proposed change to the game would have to take that into account.

But if it can be proved that a change would make a significant difference, there can be no doubt as to which path to follow despite the protests of the traditionalists.

Tradition should be given due respect but should never be an obstacle to genuine improvement.

It stands to reason anything for the good of the game has to be a significant improvement.

Keep your eye on the ball!

Hajduk dates

BY LOU GAUTIER

WHILE approving the tour in June of Hajduk Split, the Australian Soccer Federation has yet to confirm the dates for the crack Yugoslav side's five games down under.

Hajduk, currently third in their league, will play two games against the Socceroos, who might be led by an interim coach if Czechoslovak supremo Joe Venglos clinches the Socceroo job later this month.

Venglos would not be able to take up his appointment before August as he will need at least a month off after Czechoslovakia's World Cup campaign in Italy.

Though Venglos appears the ideal choice, the smart money is still on Eddie Thomson.

He is known to have strong support in the ASF, including new chairman John Constantine despite his recent claim that Thomson was not a shoe-in for the post.

Hajduk tour promoters — Rade Cikes, Tony Topic and Joe Duzel — have proposed the following tour programme:

• v Australia — Parra-

Eddie Thomson

matta Stadium, June 3.

• v Australia — Olympic Park, June 6.

• v Melbourne Croatia — Somers Street, June 10.

• v Adelaide XI — Hindmarsh, June 13.

• v Sydney Croatia — Croatian Sports Centre, June 17.

The ASF is expected to agree to the above revised schedule next week.

Letter of the Week

I have written to ABC Television with a complaint in regard to the inconsiderate allocation of a time-slot of the 'English Soccer' programme on Thursday nights.

Although I agree with the concept of putting the NSL 'Big Match' on Mondays to enable all soccer fans to see highlights of all matches, I cannot agree to giving the 11.15pm time slot for Thursday's programme.

How many would stay up that late?

The ABC should get its act together and take a note from Les Murray of SBS on presentation of Soccer programmes.

If it is not capable of arranging a sensible time-slot for the Thursday programme, then it should hand over the number one sport to the expert TV station — SBS.

Excitement galore in the last QNSL round

BY ALISTAIR RUSSELL

THE big match in the final round of the Quit National Soccer League on Sunday will be at Somers Street when Melbourne Croatia and Apia clash.

Both sides have chances of a top three berth if they can win and gain two bites of the cherry in the play-offs.

The home side, boasting one of the most lethal attacks in the QNSL, have not been beaten in their last eight games, scoring 16 goals and conceding just five.

Meanwhile, Manfred Schaefer's side of bits and pieces, have set their sights on challenging for top honours and have not lost in their last three away from Lambert Park.

Although the home ground advantage should give Croatia the edge, Apia have fought too hard to lie down now and have beaten the Melbourne side two out of the three matches played in the southern capital.

The 'City of Churches' derby takes place again this Sunday at Hindmarsh when Adelaide Hellas 'host' City.

Perhaps the last time for a while with Hellas last week relegated following their draw at Sunshine.

Hellas with just one win in their last nine matches have come off worse from local derbies in the past and back in round 13, more than 10,000 looked on as City triumphed 2-0.

With the class of players such as Alex Tobin, Steve Maxwell and Carl Veart, City should win and maybe have an outside chance of a place in the top three.

The talented South Melbourne are in Sydney this weekend to take on the Frank Arok-coached St George at Barton Park on Sunday.

Hellas will prove a tough nut to crack for Arok's charges, boasting the best defensive record in the league, a powerful midfield and an irrepressible attack where Paul Trimboli pulls the strings.

Souths have had the edge over the Saints in Sydney in the past and have not lost in their last four games away from home.

Any side Arok takes charge, however, is difficult to toss and although the Saints have won only one in their last four at home, will be keen to end a disappointing season on a winning note.

Souths must win to assure a place in the top three and should have enough in reserve to take the points.

Pride of place on the ladder goes on the line at Melita Stadium when the Eagles host Sydney Croatia on Sunday.

Melita, with a match in hand against St George, have enjoyed a very successful first season back in the 'big time', while in contrast their opponents on Sunday, Croatia, have had a poor season by their high standards.

For all Melita's successes, they have one of the poorest attacking records in the league, yet boast the league's top scorer in Greg Brown.

Without a handful of narrow defeats and the obvious tale of woe in front of goal, Melita could have been on the fringe of the top five with a little luck but have not beaten Croatia in six years.

Croatia's away record is far better than at home and they have lost only twice in their last nine matches away from the Sports Centre while in David Seal they have uncovered a fine young striker who has cemented his place following the departure of Robbie Slater and is one of the league's leading scorers.

Wollongong, destined to finish in the bottom four, take on the league's survivors, Sunshine, at Brandon Park on Sunday.

With only one win in their last 11 matches and six straight defeats away from home, George will not go into the game full of confidence but last week they survived the drop to the State League once again by the skin of their teeth, after holding Adelaide Hellas to a draw.

Another side plagued by injuries to key players, Sunshine's slump included only scoring once and conceding 15 goals in their last six away from home.

The Wolves' home record is little better, with only one win in five, yet they have never been beaten by George Cross at home and should win again on Sunday.

Woodenspooners Blacktown host bogey side Sydney Olympic this Sunday. Olympic have won nine out of the 10 matches played between the two sides and the Demons last won five years ago.

Regular season finale at Marconi Stadium

BY JOHN ECONOMOS

BERTI Mariani's Marconi, chasing their third consecutive NSL championship, stack up against visiting Preston on Sunday at Marconi Stadium.

Marconi, with tough as teak midfielder Ian Gray back from injury, look a far better balanced outfit and appear fully geared to cement the minor premiership.

'Iggy' is to Marconi what Steve McMahon is to Liverpool and England.

But Mariani is fully aware that Preston will be out to do him no favours.

With their strike-line of Andrew Zinni, Robbie Markovac and the return of Warren Spink, Preston will be determined to hinder Marconi's march

Prior to Mariani taking over Marconi, the progressive Fairfield club had won only one championship, that being back in 1979 under the guidance of Les Scheinflug.

Following a long hard season, the Marconi squad have developed a non-philanthropic attitude towards all opponents.

When questioned about Sunday's outcome, the young Marconi superno in characteristic fashion told ASW: "We will just have to wait and see, won't we?"

Pressure tells in Hindmarsh clash

BY ALAN CLARK

Action from the clash between the two Croatias in Sydney last month. The match ended in a 3-3 draw — a far cry from the goal drought at Hindmarsh — HECTOR CARRASCO photo.

THE pressure of the occasion told on Adelaide City and Melbourne Croatia in this crucial encounter on Sunday at Hindmarsh which ended in a 0-0 draw.

There probably was too much at stake for the sides to produce an evening of their customary flair and champagne attacking soccer.

Croatia seemed intent, and content, to play for a share of the spoils and achieved their goal with ease.

Adelaide City had the edge on possession and attacking moves but they huffed and puffed without really threatening giant David Miller in the Croatia goal.

He was called to brilliance only once in 62 minutes when he finger-tipped a net-bound Joe Mullen header over the bar.

A Paul Shillabeer

header just past from an Adrian Santrac corner in the dying seconds was the next nearest City came.

Branko Milosevic, subdued by a virus infection, had the best of Croatia's limited scoring chances.

He tested Soccerroo keeper Robert Zabica in 39 minutes and then shot past in 78 minutes when set up by Zeljko Adzic.

All the better play, though, came from the respective defences. Alex Tobin again was a giant for City with Milan Ivanovich and Tony Vidmar.

George Hannah played well for Croatia and Mark Talajic slotted in nicely to the backline after Paul Donnelly was helped off.

The fullback had concussion after twice being felled by Shillabeer 'collisions.'

Croatia perhaps was too elaborate in its build-up with Adzic and skipper Joe Biskic dwelling just long enough on the ball to halt the rhythm of play.

This was no classic but the importance of the occasion kept the vociferous fans engrossed.

Former Soccerroo Alan Davidson can count himself a lucky man not to have been dismissed.

Booked in 49 minutes for a foul on Mullen, he looked sure for an early bath when he blocked Steve Maxwell in 74 minutes.

But referee John McConnell adjudged Talajic had committed the offence and entered his name in the book.

Not happy with that, Davidson bulldozed over Tony Vidmar only moments later and again escaped without censure.

But the booking he did pick up probably will see him miss the next two games.

"It is going to be very hard to win from fourth or fifth," said City coach Zoran Matic.

"Now we must rely on others to help us get up for the double-chance.

"These are the kind of tough games you can expect at this time," said Matic of last night's engrossing encounter.

"They could have won but that would have been unfair on us.

"The effort was there for us but too often we rushed things. We tried to swallow the food before we had chewed it," he concluded.

ADELAIDE CITY: Zabica 6, Shillabeer 6, T. Vidmar 6, Ivanovich 6, Tobin 7, Melta 6, Veart 6, Mullen 7, Maxwell 6, Villani 5.

Adelaide Hellas relegated

BY GREG BLAKE

SKINNER Reserve was a fitting place for a burial on Sunday afternoon.

Drizzly rain fell, a biting, cold wind chilled the soul and the dark clouds which loomed overhead were a constant reminder that the NSL's first summer season was all but over.

By late afternoon the second chapter in Adelaide Hellas' chequered NSL career was also over. The only thing missing was the flowers.

Hellas had threatened not to Rest In Peace, a first half goal from Steve Politis had sent a shockwave through a Sunshine George Cross camp which had fully expected a reprieve from the usual dramatic last-ditch relegation escape in the final home and away round.

After all, Sunshine had bought back almost all of its 'gun' players for the crucial match-up and, having dominated the first half hour, George Cross looked a sure thing.

But four minutes from the break Hellas produced the unexpected when Billy Wright almost casually knocked in a cross from wide on the right and Politis speared the ball home with a first-time effort which stunned a home crowd which, seconds beforehand, had been taunting the visitors with chants of "easy, easy".

The chants were probably justified — George Cross had powered on in the early going and looked set for a handsome victory.

Whilst Hellas claimed a penalty denied in the 19th minute, the George Cross faithful could look to at least five clear-cut chances gone begging before the opening goal.

Paul Foster missed a couple and Ernie Tapai, who looks dangerous only until he is within shooting range, were not going to score if the match had continued until midnight.

Those missed chances seemed, for a time, that they might prove to be a lifeline for Hellas.

But seven minutes after half-time it took right-back Luciano Fabrizio to show the George Cross forwards how it should be done.

George Cross fans hadn't seen a goal for six games but Fabrizio gave them one to cherish on Saturday as he levelled at 1-1 and condemned the South Australians to State League football.

Winning the ball just inside the defensive half, Fabrizio took off like a gazelle in a mazy run which took him past one, then two and then three Hellas defenders before he drove home his memorable shot without checking his stride.

The roar nearly lifted the roof from the old Skinner Reserve grandstand.

Hellas disappointed with its final half-hour with the result still in the balance.

There was little of the frenzied effort one might have expected from a side still with a flicker light at the end of their tunnel.

Courageous Alby Kidd and one or two others battled it out but the half-hearted challenge posed few problems even for struggling Sunshine.

SUNSHINE: Keogh 7, Fabrizio 6, Roodhouse 7, Waddell 6, Ketsakis 7, Kindtner 6 (Parton 67m), C. Foster 5, Campbell 5, Hasler 5, Tapai 6, P. Foster 4 (Muscat 88m).

THE PAPER THAT PRINTS ALL YEAR

WADE IN DOUBT

STAR Soccerroo and South Melbourne Hellas midfielder Paul Wade might be in doubt for the QNSL finals.

Wade, rated as the king-pin in the Hellas midfield engine room, is awaiting the results of blood tests which could determine his availability for the remainder of the season.

Wade, the hardest working member of a classy Hellas side, had the tests done last week after he had to miss the club's mid-week cup semi-final against Adelaide City.

Wade dropped out of the team after suffering from weakness and general lethargy.

The blood tests will determine if Wade is to miss the finals. A preliminary diagnosis has ruled out glandular fever.

A positive sign is that Wade trained with Hellas last Saturday morning and he was named in the team to play Melita Eagles at Middle Park on Easter Monday.

Yankos' future under cloud

SOC CEROO captain Charlie Yankos is prepared to play in the State League with National Soccer League-relegated club Blacktown City, even though he believes his two-year contract would be "null and void".

Yankos, who is now in the invidious position of trying to play for the national team out of the State League, is one of the major casualties of Blacktown's demise this season.

Yankos, one of the high-profile Socceroos under the reign of former national coach Frank Arok, is prepared to negotiate with Blacktown to see out his contract, even though he believes the club's relegation has changed the conditions of his contract.

"Now that the club has been relegated to the State League, I believe that makes the contracts null and void, but I am still prepared to negotiate with the club for my services there next season."

Under the turnaround in Australian seasons, the State League takes on special significance as a bridge between the summer QNSL seasons, and with this in mind Yankos sees no embarrassment in stepping down a grade to play in the hope that Blacktown will win back its place in the QNSL by winning the state league.

"There are some matches for the Socceroos around June and July when the QNSL is in recess and I want to continue playing to maintain my fitness to be in line to play if required," he said.

There are several QNSL players signing

to make guest appearances in the State League so they can keep up to scratch, and Yankos wants to be a part of that.

"It's always been my intention to play with a State League club this year, irrespective of whether Blacktown stayed up or went down," said Yankos.

Negotiations with Blacktown are being carried out by his manager and Yankos expects a decision shortly before the start of the State League in mid-May.

Club president Greg Gingell said he already had received assurances that QNSL regulars Lawrie McKinna, Eric Ferguson, Geoff Gunning and Darren Northam would stick with Blacktown in the State League campaign.

Gingell said he had not heard back from Yankos and young striker Zlatko Arambasic, who had been linked with Sydney Croatia.

Veteran midfielder Zarko Odzakovic has retired from the game and plans to return to Yugoslavia, while City sold defenders Kurt Reynolds and Lee Sterrey to fellow-relegated QNSL club Adelaide Hellas.

It is still conceivable that Blacktown could return to the QNSL within the calendar year should they finish first past the post in the NSW State League.

President Gingell says the club has learned a bitter lesson from its disastrous season, which saw the sacking of two coaches — Les Scheinflug and Walter Tamandl — along with the resignation of long-time secretary Peter Thorne.

"As far as Blacktown is concerned, we will be promoting our own youth and turning our back on signing overseas players," said Gingell.

"Our coach Tony Henderson is adamant that he will be giving the local boys a go in first grade."

Marconi defeats Apia 2-1 on Easter Monday

BY FRANK SCICLUNA

DEFENDER Jean-Paul de Marigny virtually wrapped up the minor premiership for Marconi, scoring a goal in each half to give champions Marconi a thrilling 2-1 win over Apia Leichhardt at Lambert Park on Easter Monday.

On a very heavy pitch both teams experienced difficulties controlling the slippery ball and with the early tension of the match also affecting most players, clear-cut chances were few and far between.

Apia midfielder Shane Clinch managed to slip through Marconi after only 40 seconds to collect a Brian Ellem ball but had to overstretch and failed to get enough power in his attempt.

In the middle of the first half, Marconi started to exert sustained heavy pressure on Apia.

De Jong and Gomez both had half-chances to find the net but Apia somehow survived until eight minutes from the break when Marconi took the lead with a goal that would have made the great Maradona proud.

Marconi won a free kick outside the area and Jean Paul de Marigny curled his shot with slide-rule precision to beat a despairing Tony Pezzano in the angle of post and crossbar.

Apia hit back two minutes from the break following an inspired 20-metre raid from Klaus Okon which took him into the penalty area and his cross beat Catlin for Alex Bundalo to slam home from point-blank range.

Marconi took the game to their opponents straight from the restart and regained the lead in the 54th minute.

Once again it was de Marigny who proved the unlikely hero, picking up a loose ball and curling a left foot shot into the far corner.

Staring defeat in the face, Apia threw everything into attack in a desperate effort to salvage the valuable point they needed but lack of finish and a tight Marconi defence saw the champions gallop to victory.

Souths drop point

BY ANDREW KOSTOPOULOS

IN an entertaining match played in dull conditions, South Melbourne Hellas and Melita Eagles were good value in their 2-2 draw at Middle Park on Monday.

The second half proved as action-packed as the first. South Melbourne equalised after a cross from the left by Peter Tsolakis was headed on by Kimon Taliadoros which was headed into the net by Joe Palatsides.

Melita soon regained their lead when Lenny Vial met a cross from Marshall Soper who headed into the target in the 57th minute. Melita continued pressing with further shots by Aytec Genc and Washington Gonzalez.

South Melbourne, however, came close to equalising when Taliadoros volleyed into Alex McPherson's body from only two metres out.

In an entertaining finish, Souths gained their vital equaliser with only two minutes left on the clock.

Taliadoros rose high to meet a Paul Wade cross from the right and headed home.

Melita, however, were more than excellent value for their one league point and showed signs that they may be a force to be reckoned with next season.

South Melbourne began the game hoping to cement a place in the Top Three whilst Melita were content to continue with their improved end of year form.

The game was extremely entertaining and opened with many chances falling at either end.

Melita took the lead in the 20th minute when Marshall Soper scored from close range.

The cross was delivered by Greg Brown from the right and Soper had no problem putting it past Bruce MacLaren.

The game really came to life in the 35th minute when Peter Tsolakis went wide with his effort at one end and Melita's ace scorer Greg Brown hit the post after an enterprising run at the other end.

SOUTH MELBOURNE: MacLaren 7, Wright 6, Postecoglou 6, Durakovic 8, Blair 6, Palatsides 7, Petersen 5, Wade 7, Trimboli 7, Taliadoros 6, Tsolakis 6.

MELITA: McPherson 7, Dickenson 6, Callanan 7, O'Donnell 6, Gonzalez 7, Gimenez 7 (Parlson 74m), Vial 7, Mason 7, Soper 6, Brown 8, Genc 7.

Not all equally guilty in riot

BY LOU GAUTIER

ston plays against them.

Apia's attendance, for instance, was almost twice as large as their usual gate at Lambert Park when they played host to the Victorians and the same went for Wollonwhen Yugoslav Macedonians stormed a Sydney hotel in 1988 when Greek political dignitaries were visiting Australia for an exhibition of "treasures" of Greece's favourite hero, Alexander the Great, the son of a king of Macedonia.

A match between Olympic and Preston, also at St George Stadium, last year produced equally ugly scenes between spectators.

The trouble this time started when a Sydney Olympic fan threw a flare on the pitch.

Olympic, and fans from other clubs, have done likewise many times before, without starting a riot and standing accused of 'provocation'.

It sounds like a lame excuse to me as reliable eye witness accounts confirm that a small band of Preston fans were just waiting for something to happen.

Tension had been building even before the kick-off.

Ironically, the riot did not involve the players of both teams who continued playing in true sporting fashion while the battles raged behind one goal.

Why the QNSL, which had made it a point of warning Melbourne Croatia and South Melbourne that no repeat of their first round disturbance at Olympic Park would be tolerated when they met again at Somer Street, did not expect trouble at St George Stadium is mystery.

All the signs were surely there.

Maybe it's time the QNSL adopts FIFA's policy of declaring certain fixtures to be "high risk" games?

Like FIFA, the QNSL should instruct clubs involved in a high risk or "red alert" match that added precautions must be taken or accept the consequences.

Soccer's good name depends on it.

Fair enough that the incident — an ugly one — was given prominence in the newspapers, television and radio as it was a news story.

Some newspapers even had editorials on the subject and the NSW Government got in the act, via Police Minister Ted Pickering and Minister for Sport Bob Rowland Smith.

All of which, again, is fair enough following the appalling scenes at St George Stadium.

What is less commendable is that all spectators involved in the brawl should be tarred by the same brush.

It is a well known fact that a small element of Preston's Macedonian support invariably turns up when the Melbourne-based side plays in Sydney.

You can see about one hundred mainly young men in their distinctive red shirts, many brandishing red and black flags wherever and whenever Preston appears in Sydney.

Mind you, they are only a minority of the Sydney-based supporters Preston usually attract to their games in NSW.

The rest are well behaved and are a boon to most of the Sydney QNSL clubs, whose attendances get a healthy boost when Pre-gong City and for St George.

Saints, however, would have gladly dispensed with the extra spectators when they played Preston at St George Stadium last season.

The same tiny minority of uncouth young Preston supporters caused havoc and damage to one of their canteens and an all-out brawl was only averted because Saints, as we all know, are sadly bereft of supporters, militant or otherwise.

Which is not the case of Sydney Olympic, whose fans, let it be said, are on the whole good-naturedly exuberant.

You have to go back to the Pratten Park incident of the mid-80s and the old days of Pan Hellenic in the 60s for a Greek-instigated soccer riot.

The recent fracas had nothing to do with soccer.

It had its origins in the Byzantine labyrinth of Balkan politics.

Greece claims its Macedonian population as the one true Macedonians, a claim disputed by the Macedonians, who have their own 'republic' within Yugoslavia, and those living in Bulgaria.

There has been bad blood between the factions in Sydney before.

And soccer was certainly not involved

Leading standings: River Plate 40 points, Independiente and Rosario Central 37; Boca Juniors 32, Gimnasia y Esgrima and Union de Santa Fe 31.

Uruguay

In the Uruguayan First Division, champions Progreso drew with Danubio 1-1 and Pre-Libertadores league winner Defensor Sporting lost against Cerro 2-0.

Progreso and Defensor were without their regular players because of their involvement in the Libertadores Cup.

Other results: Penarol 1 Liverpool 1; Rentistas 1 River Plate 1; Nacional 2 Huracan Buceo 1; Wanderers 3 Bella Vista 1.

Racing 1 and Central 1

Leading standings after four rounds: Group A-Progreso 7 points, Liverpool and Rentistas 5. Group B-Nacional 7 points, Central 6 and Wanderers 5.

Friendly

The United States, continuing its build-up preparation for the World Cup finals, defeated Iceland, 4-1 in a friendly international played in Saint Louis.

Scorers for the US were S. Tritschuh in the 16th minute, Eric Wynalda in the 30th and 37th and Bruce Murray in the 57th.

Iceland's goal was converted by Peter Petursson in the 85th minute.

Souths win 1-0 to qualify for final

BY ALAN CLARK

OLD maestro Ferenc Puskas primed South Melbourne to perfection for a fighting NSL Cup semi-final win on Wednesday against Adelaide City at Hindmarsh.

South Melbourne officials were not happy in having to play the tie in SA but Hellas players were determined they would return home with a final place prize.

Tiny powerpack Peter Tsolakakis, who had a tated midfield.

Zabica and Socceroo team-mate Alex Tobin had to be at their best to keep rampaging Hellas at bay.

But the nearest South came to scoring was Tsolakakis' 43rd minute strike that hit the post.

Coach Zoran Matic obviously had a few choice words to say at half-time as City raised a gallop in the second-half but just could not get the goal it needed.

Skipper Sergio Melta and Adrian Santrac lifted in midfield and Aurelio Vidmar kept up his fine form to turn the screw on South.

Four times the home side struck woodwork.

Young striker Carl Veart, who was not in the best of form, started the rot in 51 minutes.

Joe Mullen set up Steve Maxwell whose shot was blocked by Bruce MacLaren. The ball rebounded to unbalanced Veart who spooned a shot on to and over the bar.

Paul Shillabeer then hit the top of the bar in 66 minutes from a tapped Adrian Santrac free-kick and full-back partner Tony Vidmar joined the act with another 22m drive off the top of the woodwork.

Veart cut back a cross that Mullen scooped goalwards. The ball rebounded off the underside of the bar, stayed out and was cleared.

It was not all City, though.

Wright in 57 minutes laid up to Kim Talliadoros. The big man swivelled perfectly to direct a shot just past. The elusive midfielder then set up Tsolakakis who cut back to Trimboli who scooped over.

It was a thoroughly entertaining and engrossing contest between two of Australia's finest sides.

ADELAIDE CITY: Zabica 6, Shillabeer 6, T. Vidmar 6, Ivanovic 6, Tobin 7, Melta 6, Santrac 6, Veart 5, Mullen 6, (Villani 87m), Maxwell 6, A. Vidmar 7.

rocker shot cannon clear off a post just before the interval, broke the deadlock in 63 minutes.

STEVE MAXWELL (Adelaide City)

Kim Talliadoros and Paul Trimboli cut an opening in the City defence and, when Socceroo keeper Robert Zabica parried a crisp parting shot from Trimboli, Tsolakakis was lying handily to net the crumbs.

Sluggish City had been hassled out of its style in the first half by the crisp-tackling visitors.

Steve Blair and little gem Mehmet Durakovic were impassable in defence while cool Mike Petersen and will o' the wisp Danny Wright dic-

Easy for Sydney Olympic in semi

BY JOHN ECONOMOS

ABBAS scored a spectacular hat-trick to cement Sydney Olympic's entry into the 1990 NSL Cup final at the expense of Apia after outclassing the Leichhardt side 4-1 at Marconi Stadium last Wednesday night.

Olympic will be searching for their third NSL Cup when they clash with Victorian giants Melbourne Hellas in the final on Anzac Day.

Sydney Olympic coach Mick Hickman, forever phlegmatic, told me after the match: "I was very pleased with all the lads, especially our twin central defenders, Andrew Bernal and Tony Dakos. We battled as a unit and were hungry for more goals."

"Alistair Edwards did extremely well upfront for us and himself. Al gave us much needed power and width."

Spearheaded by Saad's 'treble', plus the slashing form of striker Edwards, Olympic had too much power and class for Apia.

In fact, the score could easily have been 7-1 had not Grant Lee hit the side netting (22nd minute). Saad missed with a penalty shot (78th) and Hristodoulou not gone just wide of the right post late in the second half.

Substitute striker Marko Perinovic also hit the post just four minutes from time.

Edwards opened the scoring in the 28th minute when Lee crossed from the right and Robbie Ironside nodded down for Edwards to polish off from five metres.

Seven minutes later, sweeper Tony Dakos knocked wide to the left for Edwards to clip a fine cross into the box and Saad nailed his first goal to put Olympic 2-0 ahead.

Apia's Peter Murray headed a fine goal five minutes before the break after meeting an excellent cross from highly talented right-back John McQuarrie.

Olympic surged to a

3-1 lead in the 63rd minute when Edwards sent a great cross from the right for Lee to head down and Saad finished off from close-range.

Saad polished off his hat-trick in the 68th minute when he nailed the target with a 20-metre freekick that pierced Apia's defensive wall and rocketed into the bottom left corner of the net.

Apia looked spiritless and surprised and their midfield quartet of Alex Bundalo, Shane Clinch, Brian Ellem and Jason van Blek just could not contain a rampaging Sydney Olympic.

SYDNEY OLYMPIC: Gosling 7, Barrett 7, Dakos 7, Bernal 8, Hooker 7, Lee 7, Ironside 7, Phillips 7, Refenes 7 (Hristodoulou 80m), Saad 8 (Perinovic 80m), Edwards 8.

APIA: Hughes 6, McQuarrie 8, Stankovic 6 (Theodorakopoulos 67m), Halliday 7, Jennings 6, Bundalo 7, Clinch 7, Ellem 6, van Blek 6, Murray 6, Stewart 7.

Scorers: Saad 35m, 63m and 68m, Edwards 28m for Sydney Olympic; Murray 40m for Apia.

Yellow card: van Blek 79m for Apia.

MR GORDON Jablonski, the recently-appointed full-time general manager of the Tasmanian Soccer Federation (TSF) and Tasmanian Soccer Association (TSA), is relishing the challenges that soccer in Tasmania faces.

One of the ultimate aims for soccer in this State should be to have a team in the National League, Jablonski believes.

But, before that happens, there is much work to be done on the local scene and he is settling into his new position well and intends seeing that that work is done.

"As I'm picking up more and more of the administration duties, which I tried to avoid at the beginning, of course, it's more and more hours sitting behind the desk and doing the paper work," Jablonski said.

"But, I'm enjoying it and I think my position will help us to have more contact with the clubs in general, and to bring about a greater feeling of co-operation."

"My immediate or short term aim is to get the office administration running and to get everything on a more clockwork basis than it is at the moment."

"My other immediate aim is to look at sponsorship because we have to look at the dollars we're bringing in."

"The ultimate or long term aim we have here at the TSF and TSA is to put an NSL side into the national competition, by picking up a franchise."

Mr Jablonski said he would be working on that idea within the next three to six months by seeking out potential sponsors.

He said the potential of soccer in this State was illustrated by the visit of George Best earlier this year.

"According to the newspaper reports, 2000 people turned up to watch Best play."

"The reason 2000 showed up there and only 500, for example, turn up for a game on Wednesday night is because in Tasmania the teams all know each other."

"We're a small State and everyone knows each other and I think we need to rebuild the games, and by making their better players available for promotional work.

Players can be sent into schools where youngsters can identify with them.

"The TSA is looking at a number of promotional activities, but they all need money to run them," he said.

"We have to lift the profile of the game and we'll soon start to see a slogan coming from this office that says: 'Soccer, it's more than just football'."

"We have the potential to go nationwide and players have the opportunity to represent their country. That's a pretty good incentive for our top players."

LETTER

I am writing to express my disappointment on last week's Match of the Day program, in regard to comments made by John Kosmina, in regard to referee Chris Bainbridge.

Mr Bainbridge, in my opinion, has always been penalised and punished foul play, and has been instrumental, along with Gary Power and Don Campbell, in going some way to rid our game of the thugs.

Maybe Mr Kosmina should look at the other end of the scale, and at the referee at Middle Park last Sunday, who I consider allowed 90 minutes of quite often 'brutal' play to go unpunished.

I feel sure if any of the other three referees mentioned before were in control, Richard Miranda would not have seen out the 90 minutes.

Bebeto, Mazinho, Careca . . .

Brazilian superstars favour families, investing, hobbies

BRAZIL's top players are expected to produce some of the most exuberant soccer at the World Cup finals, but off the field they avoid lifestyles usually associated with stardom.

Most of them dedicate their spare time to their families, invest their money in property and indulge in hobbies such as breeding exotic animals, reading the Bible or collecting cars.

Striker Bebeto's favourite pastime is looking after a mini-zoo at his parents' home in Rio, where he keeps two dogs, several prize-winning cats, turtles and a variety of noisy macaws.

He does not drink or smoke and says he likes to spend his free time with his family.

Bebeto, whose full name is Jose Roberto Gama de Oliveira, was largely unknown outside Brazil until last year when he scored six goals during the South American championship in July and finished the year with 12 goals in 19 games for his country.

The performance earned him the attention of Europe's top clubs and he looks certain to be sold abroad when the contract with his club Vasco da Gama expires in August.

Originally from Salvador in north-east Brazil, he was brought to Rio by Flamengo in 1983 and stayed there until moving to Vasco last July.

He has used the money made from football to buy a house in Rio for his parents and five brothers and sisters so he can be near them. But he wants to play in Europe "to guarantee my financial independence."

Full-back Mazinho is another who was brought from the north-east to develop his career in Rio.

Mazinho left home in the state of Paraiba to complete a trial with Vasco where he has stayed ever since.

Now 23, he has used the money earned from football to help his family improve their standard of living.

Mazinho comes from a poor family and said that during his childhood he endured "a lot of suffering."

Like Bebeto, he was unknown outside Brazil until last year's South American championship when he came into the side only because of an injury to first-choice full-back Jorginho.

He is now considered to be one of the team's most important players and is set to join Italian club Pescara after the World Cup.

Also like Bebeto, he prefers a quiet life off the pitch and lists his hobbies as reading, films and playing "foot-volleyball" on the beach.

Mazinho, whose full name is Tomar do Nascimento, has joined the "Athletes of Christ", a group of footballers who are members of the Evangelical Church, and he spends a lot of time studying the Bible.

"For me, the nicest things in life are the simple things.

"With simplicity, you can go a long way," he says. "Everything I earn is for my family."

Antonio de Oliveira Filho, better known as striker Careca, has a passion for cars.

At his home in Naples in Italy he keeps a Mercedes Benz and a Renault. Back in Sao Paulo he has an Opel Diplomat and a Ford Escort XR-3.

The remainder of Careca's income is invested in property.

He owns six apartments in Sao Paulo, a penthouse in the city of Campinas and land in Ubatuba, on the coast north of Sao Paulo.

"Football has not made me a rich man, but it has helped to guarantee the future of my family," he said.

Regarded as one of the best forwards in the world, Careca is one of Brazil's survivors from the last World Cup.

He missed the South American championship last year through injury, but returned in time for the World Cup qualifiers and scored four goals in one match against Venezuela.

JOE VENGLOS

WHO IS Joe Venglos or more correctly Dr. Josef Venglos?

For those not familiar with the popular Joe during his coaching stint here in Australia in the mid sixties, including a spell with the Socceroos in 1967, the FIFA World Cup book for the '86 Mexico World Cup lists Joe as follows:

This football professor from Bratislava played for Slovan from 1954 to 1966.

He won the National Championship twice and the Cup three times.

He played 26 times for the Czechoslovakian national team.

He coached Slovan Bratislava from 1973 to 1976 and in 1972 he led the under 23 team to the European championship victory.

He was assistant coach of the Czech national team which beat the then World Champions, West Germany in the final of the 1976 European Championship.

Then he was the coach of the Czech national team from 1978 till 1982, leading Czechoslovakia to the World Cup finals in Spain in 1982.

He was next coach of the Malaysian national team.

Dr Venglos has been a member of the FIFA Technical Study group since 1979, and one of six coaches responsible for the production of the technical report on the 1986 World Cup in Mexico.

Throw in a Bachelor of Physical Education, a Doctorate of Philosophy and coach of Czechoslovakia in the forthcoming World Cup in Italy and you have a brief background of just who Dr Josef Venglos is . . .

THE JOHNNY WARREN COLUMN

Poisoned Pen

WHO needs enemies when we have editorial content like the following appearing in the Brisbane Courier Mail.

"There are bound to be knocks in a rough and tumble contact sport (like Rugby League).

Virtually everyone has a television.

If they want to watch namby-pamby behaviour they can tune into the English soccer, where 22 actors are rostered for 80 minutes (sic) practice at theatrical death throes, the cue for which is a tap on the knee (for even more drama watch while the goalies' learn how to dive dramatically to the right when Blind Freddy can see that the oversized ping pong ball is flying into the left of the net).

The Johnny Warren story

JOHNNY Warren needs no introduction in soccer circles, having been captain of the Socceroos for eight years between 1966 and 1972.

He led Australia through three World Cup campaigns, including a major involvement in the Socceroos' 1974 World Cup Finals appearance.

Soccer is Johnny Warren's life, with over 40 international appearances in countries like Mexico, Japan, Greece, New Zealand and the UK, plus over 400 domestic First Division matches.

As well as a Bachelor of Economics, he holds a FIFA Coaching Certificate (the only Australian to do so) and is soccer's representative in the NSW Sporting Hall of Fame.

His services to the game were acknowledged in 1973 when he became the first soccer identity to be presented with an MBE.

In 1988 he was one of 200 sports stars to be inducted in the Australian Sports Hall of Fame.

Warren's current soccer commitments are more behind the scenes.

In 1979 he helped promote the successful Australian tour by the New York Cosmos.

He was vital in establishing Canberra City in the National Soccer League, runs coaching clinics for young players and has a successful sports promotions consultancy.

As a columnist, Johnny contributes to the Sydney Morning Herald, Sun-Herald and Australian Soccer Weekly, plus radio stations 2UE Sydney and 2CC Canberra.

His involvement with SBS-TV began in 1980.

He has since commented several major internationals including Australia's recent World Cup campaign, the Young Socceroos in the USSR and as a studio guest during the network's live telecasts of the 1986 Mexico World Cup Finals.

He also hosted the original series of "Captain Socceroo".

Johnny is now a regular feature of SBS Television's soccer telecasts, an important member of the SBS World Cup Presentation Team and host of the 1990 "Captain Socceroo" series.

Four goals in 11-minute spree!

Wollongong Macs whip BHP Australs

BY PAUL GOODWIN

THE Newcastle side was leading 2-0 with only 11 minutes remaining and yet managed to lose this game to a depleted Wollongong Macedonia 2-4.

Robbie Porter put the Austral boys in front of the 26th minute, getting his head to a chip pass by Naumov when the defence had failed to fully clear Naumov's original cross.

Mazevski had a fine game in goal for the Wollongong side, but could not prevent Dougie Elphick from making it 2-0 in the 32nd minute.

Wayne Bailey always looked a threat on his speedy runs upfield and made a perfect cross for Elphick to shoot from close range with the perfect result.

The game continued well into the second half with the Newcastle side apparently in full command, but Wollongong stuck to their task and were a side waiting for their opportunity to come, should Austral slip up.

Robbie Porter had

the ideal chance to put his side beyond reach when he won a penalty in the 77th minute.

Porter was brought down in the box by Darren Galway, but hit his spot kick weakly and the keeper made a tidy save.

In the 79th minute, Zoran Kolovski took advantage of a defensive error in the Newcastle side, robbing Devon of possession and finishing nicely.

That meant a ray of hope for the Mace-

Kosmina prominent in Sutherland's win

ANOTHER solid display by Sutherland at Seymour Shaw Park yielded a 3-1 win over Avala, leaving the Sharks unbeaten, albeit after completing just two matches to date.

had been left exceptionally heavy on an otherwise ideal pitch, and sent over a good cross after beating two defenders.

John Kosmina met the ball with a far post header in the 34th minute to put the home side one up.

In the 73rd minute Harry Christodoulou made a strong break when put through and managed to score his side's second, despite a late lunge by Atlagic, which resulted in the Avala player receiving his marching orders.

Avala pulled one back when Kuc was allowed to waltz past a slumbering defence in the 85th minute and slot the ball home.

Sutherland restored their two-goal margin when substitute Grant Bard took the ball forward, before passing to Kosmina, who laid on the chance for defender Robbie Sellar to crack his second goal in two games.

SUTHERLAND: Dart, Edmunds, Sellar, Terry, Biscaya, Ensor, Hutcheon (Rothwell), Christodoulou (Bard), Kosmina, Sharp, Leney.

AVALA: Rodic, Radic, Cugal, Bruker, Vrankovic, Nastoski, Vasic, Benitez, Kuc, Atlagic, Welch.

donians and when a Brett Thornthwaite shot from just inside the box wrong-footed Craig Carter by deflecting off a defender, in the 83rd, the scores were suddenly level.

A now-confident Wollongong pressed home their good fortune and Tony Caban put his side in front in the 86th minute with a good goal, before Gus Cerro made it 4-2 with still a minute to play.

Although missing Simon Brandt from the starting line-up, it was almost a full-strength Austral team and the down-on-power Wollongong returned home to a rousing reception after this upset result.

Goalies' Handbook

WALTER Gagg, head of FIFA's Technical Department, has endorsed the Goalkeepers' Handbook, written by Steve Darby.

The book was written with an eye to the needs of coaches, teachers, parents and players.

Darby himself played in goal in the Middle East and Australia, and is currently the Australian national women's team coach.

He is a full-time coaching consultant with the Australian Sports Commission in Canberra and is completing a masters' degree at the Canberra CAE.

In the soccer discipline he holds an FA full licence, a FIFA Instructor Award and is an ASF staff coach.

The goalkeeping manual includes chapters on equipment, technique, fitness and training routines.

The handbook is available for $10 inclusive from State Federations or 11 Connelly Place, Emu Ridge, Canberra ACT 2619.

Team work wins it for Rockdale

BY GRAHAM COOKE

ROCKDALE Ilinden gave Inter Monaro a lesson in a team-work and tactics in its 2-0 NSW Cup win over the Queanbeyan side at the Marco Polo Ground on Saturday.

Monaro has now played three consecutive games without scoring and the strike force, admittedly minus the inspiration of Baz Giampaolo, looks perilously short of ideas on how it might end this state of affairs.

In recent times, the defence has provided a partial solution by keeping games within the reach of a single goal, but on Saturday it too had an off-day.

Both Rockdale's goals could have been prevented and to cap an unhappy game for the home club Steve Bryant received his marching orders in the 52nd minute after a verbal exchange with referee Carl Thayer.

Finally, the home side could work out no answer to Rockdale's tactic of squeezing play into the middle of the field by use of the offside trap, then attacking in numbers.

Rockdale took the lead after 10 minutes.

Bruno Beddoni penetrated on the right then was given time to choose his shot before placing the ball along the ground, past an exposed Steve Hoszowski, into the far corner of the net.

The visitors went looking for more — and should have found it when Peter Willis' corner went to Darren Wilson, free in the box, but the defender failed to punish the error by blazing well over the bar.

GIAMPAOLO

Wilson had another opportunity, this time with his head, but the ball went the same way, then Bryant turned the ball into the path of Michael Lardis, who also went wide.

Monaro's best efforts of the half was a drive from Vic Fernandez which scorched just over the bar and an attempt by Frank Danielle on half-time which was straight at goalkeeper Keith Warren.

There was some improvement after the interval although a combination of tight defence and the offside trap was generally denying Monaro access to the Rockdale penalty area.

The last real hope died when it was reduced to 10 men — Bryant going at the same time Angelo Ambrosino received a caution from Thayer.

Within three minutes Rockdale was further ahead.

Wilson got in between Luche Djordjieski and Hoszowski and, as all three struggled to gain possession, managed to turn the ball back for the incoming Scott Deveridge to tuck away.

INTER MONARO: Hoszowski, Grassick, Ambrosino, Bryant (sent off), B. Monterosso (Djordjieski 14), Danielle, Carbone, Fernandez, Popovich, Janke (Maricic 83), Chicco (B. Monterosso 83).

ROCKDALE ILINDEN: Warren, Willis, Segreto, Wilson, Buchanan, Campbell, Deveridge, McKie, Beddoni, Gardikiotis, Porter.

Victorians covet National League honours

VICTORIAN soccer wants and probably needs an NSL title. It has been five years since the National Soccer League championship last came south.

Five long and bleak years — when real achievements by Victorian teams have been few and far between.

In that period there have been all too few sparks of hope from the Melbourne NSL contingent.

Preston's heroic jump from last to runner-up bid in 1987 kept us interested for a time, but the then Ernie Merrick-coached Connor Reserve team was never going to catch runaway title winner Apia Leichhardt.

In '88 South Melbourne Hellas at times seemed to touch on the verge of greatness but wilted in two straight finals losses.

Last season a disastrous final day of the home and away season cost Melbourne Croatia the double chance, and we had to contend with two Melbourne teams cutting each other's throats in the elimination final.

And anyway, no one was equipped to handle the Marconi juggernaut in the end.

Melbourne clubs' performances have been mediocre, second rate and tired, and all the time the spectre of Sydney's physical and mental domination of the league has loomed larger.

Melbourne has probably gone backwards — with the exception of an impressive array of junior talent to have come through the ranks.

Clubs have crashed and, since, the 1985 title went the way of Brunswick Juventus, Victoria has lost Melbourne City JUST, Green Gully, Heidelberg (twice) and Juventus itself from the NSL scene.

ZELJKO ADZIC

None look set for a quick return and, worse still, their return to the local scene has done little to bolster the ailing State League.

The Victorian scene and its much-publi-

GREG BLAKE LAYS MELBOURNE'S NSL ASPIRATIONS RIGHT ON THE LINE

cised problems of recent years indicate that Melbourne's local competitions, at least the major ones, are in as much turmoil as they've ever been.

The picture is bleak — unless the turn of the decade can bring about a dramatic reversal in fortunes.

Hopes Spring ...

That is why we are pinning so many hopes on Melbourne Croatia and South Melbourne as they head into the 1990 finals series.

An NSL title in 1990 wouldn't cure the ills of the game down south but my word, it would be a change for the better.

The sight of Jo Biskic or Angie Postecoglou lifting the championship trophy in front of a packed gallery at Olympic Park might just be uplifting enough to get us through another cold winter of plodding State League football.

It might be a heavy burden to bear, but the hopes of Melbourne's soccer fraternity rest with Souths and Croatia in the next few weeks.

Of the pair, I'm convinced Croatia is the better equipped to do the job despite the club's relatively poor record in the big matches.

ABC commentator Peter Gee probably summed Croatia up recently on a Monday night broadcast as he watched the red machine squander opportunity after opportunity in a game against Sunshine George Cross.

"For Melbourne Croatia this has been a season of lost opportunities," Gee said.

And despite an impressive 48 goals in 24 matches to date there can be no better summation of Croatia's season — or last season at that.

I fear for what it could do to other sides if it ever got going as one suspects it could.

But potential is only ever going to remain potential unless the team does produce the goods.

Restoration

Melbourne Croatia plays football like a whirlwind, and often it looks to be playing a class ahead of its often pedestrian forward brigade.

Melbourne Croatia is the team that can restore Melbourne's credibility and pride in 1990 but whoever gets the nod up front in the finals must produce an outstanding effort that has been lacking this season.

Too much is left to probably the best midfield in the NSL today.

You cannot fault Adzic, Milosevic, Biskic and deputies Duzel and Talajich.

Davidson and the irrepressible Hannah and Co. shore up a tightly knitted defence and 'Davo' so often works in to become almost a fifth midfielder going forward.

As a genuine front man Markovski is like an explosion waiting to happen and I hope he gets that role during the play-offs.

His presence takes some of the pressure from the men who are going to have to produce some of the best football of their lives if Croatia is to land the trophy.

Kelic and Awaritefe are Croatia's closest things to genuine front men but both, at their worst, can look ungainly and awkward.

At their best they can be lethal.

Croatia boasts as good a multi-pronged attack as Marconi on its day but can it be relied upon to fire up under finals pressure?

1990 might have been Croatia's year of missed chances going into the finals but let's hope it doesn't miss the biggest opportunity of all and the chance for glory.

It mightn't come again, particularly without the shining light of Adzic next season.

isn't the only focal point in attack.

The big barnstormer Souths was crying for two years ago has appeared in the form of Taliadoros whilst wee man Tsolakis has had an exceptional year.

Souths was loathe to acknowledge John Kosmina's early season jibes at the apparent "laziness" of the midfield.

But I do detect that, perhaps even without realising, some of their players not renowned for their work-rate have been working furiously in the engine room during their recent unbeaten run.

Wade's efforts were never in question but now he has a skilled bunch of workers and providers around him as well.

No team plays as well as Souths does when its confidence is high and, like Croatia, the Middle Park boys must be bubbling after a good recent spell and with a surprisingly small injury list.

It doesn't have Croatia's depth but its overall skill leaves it out in front on its own.

If Hellas has a weakness it is still in defence where the team floundered badly last year.

But although still prone to being found out down the flanks on occasion the addition of the durable Durakovic has done much to strengthen South Melbourne.

His fierce determination and sometimes uncanny sense of anticipation complements the rock-steadiness and complete supremacy in the air of Blair.

Both teams boast at least some finals experience so neither will go into the play-offs without some knowledge of the cut-throat nature of finals football.

The experience might prove invaluable against the might of finals-hardened Marconi.

I'm an optimist, always have been, but it is not overly optimistic to suggest that Melbourne now has its best chance of winning the ultimate prize for the first time since 1985.

With at least one Melbourne team certain of the double chance we await the finals with fingers crossed.

Hennessey at Juve

Former Melbourne Croatia, Heidelberg and Knox City boss Terry Hennessey is the new coach of ailing State League club Brunswick Juventus. Hennessey replaces "retrenched" Roberto Vieri. Billy Rogers, the former club champion who walked out late last year after winning and subsequently losing the senior job, has a made welcome return as Hennessey's assistant.

Let's have a genuine clean up at last

FRANK SCICLUNA ADVOCATES BOLD INITIATIVES TO STAMP OUT THUGS

ONCE again, a few hundred politically motivated morons have succeeded in dragging the name of the game I love through the lowest of gutters.

In the process they have effectively undone in a matter of a few idiotic minutes all the painfully slow progress which has been gained by the efforts of the majority of our decent clubs over recent years.

By the time these comments are published, thousands of words would have already been said and written in all of our media.

Nevertheless, those disgusting events of soccer's blackest day at St George Stadium deserves the strongest condemnation at every opportunity.

It's only been a few short months since similar unsavoury scenes were beamed throughout the country on national television, and shown on the front pages of our mass circulation daily newspapers following that fracas at Olympic Park involving Melbourne Croatia and South Melbourne.

Undoubtedly, some of the thugs who created this latest fiasco at the match between Sydney Olympic and Preston were also party to another ugly flare up in the corresponding fixture last year.

Unless fearless and meaningful action is taken NOW by soccer administrators, it can only be a matter of time before this great game of football is once again subjected to the same degradation which never fails to follow such incidents.

Self righteous claims of so called anti-soccer media bias which supposedly blows the slightest incident out of all proportion is pure and utter garbage, borne out of self preserving instincts and sheer blindness to reality.

Let's get one thing perfectly clear: the violence associated with soccer in this country does in no way, shape of give the impression that their major reason for existence is to simply continue fostering the continuation of this traditional hatred.

Well, in my opinion, the time has now come to eradicate this distasteful stupidity ENOUGH IS greatest game on earth in peace.

The people who continuously perpetrate their violent activities have cost football its very dignity and forced it to endure more than its fair share of heartache by their determination to use the code

It's a debatable argument, but one worthy of deep consideration, that had the competition points deducted from the two Melbourne clubs earlier this season, this latest incident may well have been avoided.

A valuable opportu-

on commercial television.

Tragically, all the goodwill engendered from their endeavours was washed down the drain in the aftermath of the horrific publicity created by the sickening events at Rockdale.

Bite the bullet

That old emotive question of whether clubs should be forced to completely drop all ethnic names need no longer even to be asked, the bullet has got to be firmly bitten with every club directed to assume a district affiliated identity before the start of next season — no ifs, buts, maybes or waiting for Bradley Reports.

Why must South Melbourne have Hellas tagged to the end of their name, why can't Adelaide Hellas simply go back to West Adelaide.

It certainly has not done any harm for neighbouring Adelaide City to do away with the old Juventus.

Is the name of Croatia really necessary and would the events at St George still have taken place had Preston been forced to drop the Makedonia label a few years ago?

Somehow I doubt it.

The powers that be must supply the lead. If any club cannot accept such a directive they can simply get out and make way for someone else who will.

Genuine soccer supporters who truly love the game will soon find another team to follow, the ones who are lost are hardly wanted anyway as they will certainly include the ratbags who cause so much havoc.

The measly $7 they pay at the gate can neither be desperately needed nor wanted, for if soccer cannot live without such people it has no right to prosper.

form resemble the hooligan problems experienced overseas.

Thankfully, their situation, to which many responsible officials almost despair of ever finding a solution, has not reached our shores.

What we have here is an entirely different kettle of fish.

We're enslaved to a repugnant problem which is associated with blatantly naked political grudges imported into our society and carried down through the generations.

What's more, a minority of our clubs

ENOUGH.

Excesses

There is no place in our stadiums for excessive nationalistic fervour, waving of foreign flags or numerous public announcements made in a strange language.

The country, the code and the vast majority of genuine fans are sick in the stomach of being subjected to political ideas in which they don't have the slightest interest.

All they want to do is simply enjoy a pleasant afternoon with their families watching the

as a means of cheap, political point scoring.

Their antics are the major cause for the game's lack of progress and gradual stagnation.

Soccer's hierarchy can no longer afford to sweep the whole sordid mess under the carpet for fear of upsetting this loudly vocal minority.

Empty threats of heavy penalties — which are rarely imposed — does little more than encourage further violence by louts who are comfortable in the knowledge that their clubs and themselves are immune from any real punishment.

ity to finally drive home a strong message may have gone to waste.

Clubs which have invested in their own and soccer's future in this country should, for their own sake, support every effort to clean up the game's image otherwise, they may find their long term future placed in jeopardy.

On the very same day that this latest riot took place, NSL champions Marconi Fairfield was entertaining Adelaide City in front of a bumper crowd after taking the initiative of spending thousands of dollars to promote the match

John Constantine

As a result of such action, soccer may even start to get the thousands of genuine followers and their families coming back to fill the terraces.

Newly elected ASF president John Constantine was witness to the whole ugly affair at St George and was thankfully brave enough to resist from offering the same old tired cliches such as the whole thing being nothing more than a storm in a teacup.

Instead, he publicly apologised to the Australian sporting public for that disgraceful incident and pledged that every step will be taken to ensure such happenings are stamped out once and for all.

Let's all hope and pray that he has the strength to stand by his commitments.

Constantine will certainly carry the total support of everyone even remotely associated with this great game of ours.

If he can succeed in doing nothing else but strip the code of its ethnic and political stigma during his first term in office, he will forever be remembered as the man who helped steer Australian soccer out of the deep mire it has sunk in.

ADZIC SHOCK

Melbourne Croatia midfielder wizard Zeljko 'Gerry' Adzic could be playing his last season of NSL football. He has admitted that he will leave Australia at the end of the current season "for a while" and he wants to bow out with a championship medal. Adzic, the Croatia dynamo who helped lift the club into successive finals series after joining the club from Canada, will return to native Yugoslavia for a break at the end of the season. But the suggestion is that the former Dynamo Zagreb star is being chased by another Yugoslav first division club.

Superstar qualities vital for soccer's future

BY MIKE JOHNSON

A lightweight sport does not normally attract heavyweight people.

This has been one of the many catch 22 problems which has afflicted soccer in Australia over the years.

Some heavyweight people have flirted with Australian soccer and eventually left it.

Another is England 'B' international Jim Kelly, now a millionaire in England.

Some of the heavyweights who did stay on are Alex Pongrass, president of St George BSC, and Andrew Lederer, Sydney City's guiding star, also St George manager-coach Frank Arok.

Similarly in the media, heavyweight professionals gravitate away from soccer upward to the major sports.

Sydney cricket writer Phil Wilkins is one who comes to mind.

He like several other top sports journalists learned his craft in the soccer arena.

He did so with the Sydney Morning Herald, who currently employ the excellent Mike Cockerill as its soccer writer — how long will Mike remain with us?

However, as soccer is gradually evolving upward, it continues to throw up outstanding talent.

Recent examples are the gifted manager-coach Berti Mariani.

Another is John Kosmina.

The other night watching and listening to John Kosmina on the ABC's Big Match television programme, my mind went back to 1977 when 'Kossie' was about 20 years old.

As manager-coach of Adelaide Hellas I took him to the Coca-Cola Bottling Co in Adelaide, where we had arranged to find employment for him.

His job involved looking over the bottles as they rattled around the conveyor system at Coca-Cola Bottlers.

John was already a bit of a name in Adelaide and they were happy to have him, though the mental nature of the work did not seem inviting.

John, a bit of a tear-away in those days, did not seem to mind.

Now in his mid thirties, married with children, former captain of the Socceroos and with several years as a representative for sports goods and business management firms at the back of him, he presents knowledge, intelligence, and self assurance on television that is quite impressive.

He will be good for our soccer.

Already, good for our soccer and increasingly so is Berti Mariani.

At 33 he has a huge amount of ability to offer our game, as manager, coach and later on as administrator.

Like Frank Arok, he is highly intelligent and multi-talented.

Given Arok's drive, he will have an enormous impact on our game.

Frank Arok's brilliance and years of experience must not be lost to Australian soccer.

He will continue to coach and manage the soccer affairs of St George for the next year or two, but his energy and intellectual capacity extends beyond that.

meet with him and listen to his views on our games.

Arok is a super-heavyweight who likes to have challenges. Let us present him with some.

Meanwhile, the full-time apprentice innovation with young Paul Okon at Marconi is interesting.

It was tried, with several young players years ago at Western Suburbs Soccer Club in Sydney.

The scheme folded after a couple of years and later the club with it. Subsequently Sydney Croatia also flirted unsuccessfully with full-time players.

Marconi's record on most things has been one of greater success than Wests or Croatia.

Let us hope, as Marconi hopes, that their scheme will, indeed plug the soccer drain which is leaving our National League almost devoid of stars.

John Kosmina and Frank Arok.

SBS's television coup

A MAMMOTH world-wide television audience estimated at 16 billion will watch the action from Italy in next year's World Cup Final series.

And sportsfans in this country won't be left out — they'll see 180 hours of the greatest football the world has to offer on SBS which has the exclusive Australian rights to the finals.

The series which starts on June 8 and goes through to July 8 next year, will undoubtedly be the greatest football extravaganza ever shown on Australian television.

SBS will beam games in live at 1am and 5am each day and follow it up with package highlights at prime time from 7 pm each evening.

The World Cup is the most prestigious tournament in sport and the finals from Italy promise to be the greatest ever staged in the history of the event.

Anchor man for the SBS team based in Rome will be Les Murray assisted by John Warren with Dominic Galati the World Cup producer heading a strong off-air contingent.

The team of Murray and Warren pride themselves on knowing something about everything that occurs in soccer that may be interesting to the viewers.

Producer Galati pulled the rug from under the feet of Australia's major networks when, single-handedly, he captured the rights of the 1990, 1994 and 1998 World Cup final series for his station.

Excitement

Chief commentator from Italy will be Britain's best, Martin Tyler.

It is said that a football commentator's job is simple — but he requires three pairs of ears, and four sets of eyes.

The SBS station through its long connection with the game over the years, has conquered the art of covering soccer.

This is to allow the viewer to see the "flow" of the game and at the same time bring the dramatic excitement, Naples, Bari, Palermo and Cagliari.

The opening game will be at the Giuseppe Meazza Stadium in Milan on Friday, June 8 with the final itself at the Olympic Stadium in Rome on Sunday, July 8.

The Italian government television station RAI which will televise the matches for the world networks, has spent $470 million to cope with the technical demands of the series.

Les Murray

A complete new broadcasting centre containing the latest infrastructure has been built on the outskirts of Rome.

This will bring a global technical revolution in television and give the viewers 'complete football'.

And the eventual World Cup winners won't just be the team that captures the cup, but every television viewer who watches this great event.

ment of the players involvement. This, together with the roar of the crowd and added commentary, takes some achieving.

But SBS has managed this and will continue to do so in the big one from Italy.

The finals, which comprise 24 competing nations and 52 matches, will be held in 12 Italian cities — Rome, Milan, Turin, Genoa, Verona, Udine, Bologna, Flor-

NICK Papallo has resigned as president and director of the Apia club. Papallo, a Sydney lawyer, who is also chairman of the Italian Chamber of Commerce, will continue his duties as an NSL executive.

Papallo says he has enjoyed his 13 years in soccer but feels it's time to move on.

In recognition of his services, his fellow-Apia directors honored him by making him an honorary life president of the club.

According to the South Melbourne Hellas constitution, anyone who completes the task of compiling an historical document on the club can be entitled to honorary life membership. Young scribe Petros Kosmopoulos completed a 385 page volume on the club's history six months ago and he's still waiting to hear from them. South Melbourne has also declined a golden opportunity to market the comprehensive history of the club compiled over three years by Kosmopoulos.

Despite no other records being kept by the club, he has been accorded no encouragement by Hellas to have the document printed and marketed.

Kosmopoulos is hoping to have his history printed with or without assistance from the club.

Victoria's State Super League should be up and running by 1991 — if member clubs agree to the necessary constitutional changes at a VSF extraordinary general meeting on May 3. The changes would allow for the top 12 teams of the 1990 State League to form a 'Super Division' with the remaining six, plus six promoted from division one left to form a State League First Division.

Talented, young Victorian coach and former NSL star Branko Culina is out of a job because he was as good as his word. Despite an impressive record with Victorian State League club St Albans last season, the club had failed to find form in the early going this year. On the eve of St Albans' recent clash with Frankston Pines Culina told the club he would resign if his club went down. They lost after taking an early lead and Culina carried out his threat. It's hard to see the former Rothmans Medal winner our of work for long.

Veteran former Heidelberg and Preston star Claude Lucchesi has been given a new lease of life with current club Fawkner. The re-prieved State League outfit is overjoyed with Lucchesi's performances in the sweeper's role. Another 'old-timer', former JUST favourite Zdravko Lujic, has thrilled the Fawkner fans with some brilliant displays as the club has signalled its intent on challenging for the State League title.

"All I was doing there was tidying up ground arrangements for the Hajduk tour."

Vrzina is impressed by the magnificent Marconi set-up, and says he can see no reason why Sydney Croatia cannot emulate their deeds.

QNSL players this week submitted their votes for the QNSL Players' Player of the Year contest. The NSL office sent out 20 voting slips per club. Only players who have appeared in the QNSL this season can vote. Players cannot vote for team-mates or for themselves. They have to allocate three points to their first choice, two to the second and one to their third preferred player.

With Blacktown City back to the NSW State League, coach Tony Henderson is in no two minds over his requirements for dedication of players. "They have to be ready to give everything for the club or I don't want them," he said. # Thomastown loses unbeaten record

BY MARC BREKAU

THOMASTOWN, playing without inspirational player-coach Ken Murphy and suspended regulars Christaldo and Zemunic, lost their unbeaten League record as they crashed to middle of the table Caulfield City 4-0 at Partridge Reserve.

Caulfield entered the match under the guidance of reserve team coach Billy Rae, first team coach John Margaritis having resigned prior to the match commencing.

Caulfield opened the scoring after 36 minutes when Steve Greenwood scored a hotly disputed goal, Thomastown feeling the ball was handled over the line. Unfortunately for the home side, everyone saw this except the referee.

Five minutes later Chris Taylor was brought down and Con Pappas stepped up to score from the penalty spot.

Two minutes before half-time, Dean Hennessey's attempted clearance ended up in his own goal net to complete the home side misery.

Caulfield never looked in danger of losing and sealed the match 10 minutes from full-time when Thomastown were caught on the break, Bill Tsiajos scoring with ease for his second of the season.

MORWELL FALCONS 1
NORTHCOTE CITY 1

An entertaining match was played between these two clubs, with a point shared at the end of 90 minutes.

Morwell got off to an early lead when a Jimmy Nelson corner was headed in by Bruns after five minutes.

Morwell fielded reserve goalkeeper Alec Eacott in this match and coach Bob McLachlan would have been satisfied with his performance.

Northcote's early pressure paid dividends in the 10th minute when a poor Morwell clearance fell to Pedro Ramos who fired home from the edge of the ings to both clubs.

After 20 minutes play in the second half Croydon scored their second goal. Intense pressure by the home side saw an Andy Humble shot deflected off a Box Hill defender into his own goal.

Box Hill scored before the end. A break in concentration by the home defence allowed McGeachie to pull one back, but by then Croydon had already laid claim to both points.

BULLEEN 2
HEIDELBERG ALEX 1

Bulleen Veneto kept themselves in contention for the top league position with a fine win over Heidelberg, and have Darren Tuck to thank for providing them with the points.

Tuck took his goal tally to seven after this match.

Bulleen scored after 31 minutes. Michael Branov's long throw-in found Tuck whose shot flew past Heidelberg keeper Jeff Olver. A minute before half-time Tuck made it 2-0 when he latched onto a long ball from Krajacic.

Bulleen were effective in marking striker Paul Lewis, who did little to trouble their defence.

Heidelberg pulled a goal back in the second half when substitute Stubbins scored a superb goal in the 60th minute.

However, this goal was only a consolation one as Heidelberg never really looked like taking the game to a draw.

Bulleen's score might have been higher had it not been for the fine performance of Olver, who prevented Tuck from scoring a hat-trick by bringing him down and then saved Livingston's resulting penalty 10 minutes from full-time.

RINGWOOD CITY 1
JUVENTUS 4

Juventus finally shrugged off their recent poor form and gave newly appointed coach Terry Hennessey a dream start as they swept aside Ringwood at Jubilee Park.

Former Preston striker Steve Smith scored twice and showed that he will be a valuable asset to Juventus in the future.

Smith scored five minutes before the interval when he headed a Shaun Lane cross.

Brunswick then scored three goals in 15 minutes as they ran amok through Ringwood's defence.

Smith made it 2-0 just after the break. Shaun Lane fired home his spotkick and Brian Nicolls' acute shot glanced off the post to give Juventus a commanding lead.

Ringwood relied on the offside trap to take the sting out of the Juventus attack.

MELB. CITY JUST 0
MOOROOLBARK 0

Mooroolbark survived continuous pressure from a spirited JUST side as both clubs battled to come to grips with Melbourne City's waterlogged pitch.

Mooroolbark could have taken an early lead through House, who pulled a good save from Spiros Kardamitis. The poor pitch conditions made tackling a hazardous task and took much of the skill out of the match.

JUST have a fine player in young Sasha Becvinovski, who given a better pitch might well have scored a couple himself.

The home team's best scoring opportunity came in the second half when Navmovski mis-kicked his shot a couple of metres from the Mooroolbark goal-mouth with only the keeper to beat.

FRANKSTON PINES 2
ALBION TURK GUCU 4

For entertainment and excitement you could go no further than this match, for it had everything that a spectator could want from a soccer game.

Albion scored after 20 minutes through Peter Kadlicek who beat two players before firing home.

Azzopardi made it 2-0 from close range shortly afterwards.

Gordon Favale put in a fine performance, and his free was eventually picked up by Steve Douglas who scored Albion's third.

Favale's free-kick also led to Albion's fourth. His free-kick found McLeod, whose flick header provided the perfect ball for George Gagic to net his first goal of the season.

Pines scored both their goals in the second half.

Douglas Hodgson scored in the 58th minute and player-coach Joe Sweeney scored the goal of the game with a 25-metre volley in the last 10 minutes.

Frankston were unfortunate to have Craig Miller taken off early in the first half with a knee injury. Their game appeared to falter when he left the field.

The home side's luck ran out later in the match when Steve Keenan was sent off, leaving Frankston to play out the match with nine men (both substitutes having already appeared).

Coaches' Column

BY BARRY DAVIS

ONE of the most often stated problems in the game is about scoring goals.

A great many teams seem to have major problems in this area at all levels of the game, and it has been so for years and years and years.

Teams with such a problem have to closely examine their play in two vital areas if they are to find a solution.

Firstly, they must look at the quality of the service of the ball being provided to the striker(s) to assess whether it is appropriate or not.

In many cases, examination will reveal that much of the ball supplied for the striker(s) is faulty.

Often it will be in the form of through passes which they cannot catch or balls which are difficult to control and therefore cause difficulty for the striker.

There are many other possible problem areas relating to the service of the ball.

To discover the causes, you must first analyse the quality of passes and their types and the work with the combination of midfielders and strikers on re-creating whatever you perceive to be wrong.

The second area is the play in front of goal.

Frequently the problem is that the strikers simply are not taking the chances presented to them.

The reasons for this could be a fear of criticism if they miss or a matter of them having too small a range of techniques to allow them to put some balls in the net.

If the first situation applies to your team then you must remedy it by praising players who TAKE the shot, no matter whether a goal results or not.

The praise and encouragement from you will enhance the experience for them and they will WANT to shoot more often.

Of course, you will need to sort out the reasons for any misses and for the problems but more goals will result when players have the desire to shoot.

If the second scenario fits your team, you have a very big job ahead of you.

Firstly, you must expand the players' range of techniques and then you must encourage them to be used in front of goal.

Teaching new techniques is a long and involved process but certainly worth the effort because it is in the players' long-term interests.

In future columns we will discuss other reasons for a lack of goals — and there are many. In the meantime, those provided above are worth looking at from your team's perspective.

Barry Davis is editor of the well credentialled COACHING OVERVIEW monthly magazine.

penalty area. After each side had scored, the game appeared to turn into a stalemate situation, with neither side having an opportunity to break the deadlock and take the points.

GREEN GULLY AJAX 2
ST ALBANS 0

A lacklustre St Albans team did little to stop Green Gully winning this local derby at Green Gully Reserve.

At times the St Albans attack appeared to falter and they struggled to complete their attacks with that all important finishing touch.

Ajax took the lead after 35 minutes when Kevin Harrison picked up the ball after Tommy Daley shot, Harrison scoring from close range.

St Albans applied the pressure, but never looked like finding the back of the net.

Eventually, St Albans' fate was sealed five minutes into the second half. A Harrison cross found Daley who obliged with his fourth goal of the season. St Albans' best scoring opportunity came in the final 10 minutes, when Morovic's shot hit the post.

FAWKNER 0
ALTONA GATE VARDAR 0

Altona's midfield controlled most of the match as Fawknor appeared from the offset to settle for a point.

Altona coach Billy Murray has built a creative side, and this was very evident in the second half as Altona came close to scoring on several occasions.

Both Stevanovic and Nicoski hit the post and McMullen pulled off a great save from Fawknor keeper Tarudua in the final minutes of the match.

Coach Chado Cherkovic would have been disappointed with Fawknor's performance this week, especially after playing so well against Albion in the previous round.

CROYDON CITY 2
BOX HILL 1

Croydon City continued their unbeaten run and remained top of the League with a win over bottom-placed Box Hill.

Goran Runje set the ball rolling for Croydon after 15 minutes when his fine run on the left ended with a cross which Andy Humble headed home from 12 metres.

The match proved to be very physical and the referee was kept busy as he handed out six book-

Albion coach Ian Wallace said afterwards: "The way we played, creating chances and dominating the play, we could have reached double figures."

The NSL playoffs are likely to be held in September but the SA Soccer Federation would like them finished as quickly as possible as Hindmarsh Stadium needs a rest period for repair and recuperation.

Meanwhile, a proposed SASF board meeting last week over NSL content of Hellas and Adelaide City's State League sides was cancelled because of a crisis meeting between soccer officials, Hindmarsh Council and the State Government over leasing arrangements for Hindmarsh.

But the SASF is seeking legal advice over just how many NSL players can be drafted into the SA giants' State line-ups.

There are special problems in SA with most players in the respective clubs holding dual registrations for the NSL and State competitions.

Any rules applying to Hellas also would apply to Adelaide City so it could be determined that both could field their full NSL sides in the State competition.

But Hellas players, in particular, would face the worry of 'burn out' if they did not get a break at the end of the NSL season.

They went straight into this season's NSL with hardly any lay-off from last year's State campaign.

If they were to go on and play in this season's State games they again would virtually only have a couple of weeks' break before the QNSL start in October should they win the State title and be successful in the QNSL play-offs.

The ex-Celtic and Scotland star has been brought out as a guest of the club.

He played last weekend in a charity clash between old boys from Adelaide City and Brunswick Juventus.

Deans was a legend with City in the formative years of the NSL.

Now 43, he still looks fit and maintains his good sense of fun.

But he was not too

Cut out play acting!

WRITES PETER BERRY

THE personal quality of fair play seems foreign to many soccer players these days, whether they are international soccer stars (Maradona — hand of God incident World Cup 1986) or a player in a local competition.

This important attribute world wide appears to be fading into non-existence on the football field, and in its place comes a win at all costs attitude which employs many underhanded tactics.

Too often players are cheating — for example being pushed and reacting as if being punched in an endeavour to have an innocent player sent off and faking injury.

The fear is that it is becoming an accepted part of football, and in some quarters applauded and encouraged.

For instance, while playing for Turkey against Argentina in an SBS Ethnic Cup semi-final, an incident occurred that typifies this unsportsmanlike behaviour.

The story is: the score was locked at 1-1 when speedy Turkish forward Oscar broke through and appeared destined to score.

At that moment he was rugby tackled by an Argentinian defender in a so-called professional foul just outside the box.

Naturally the player was sent off but the result of this was no score, no action, no satisfaction in seeing a fine move to its finish which may have resulted in a well taken goal, or a superb one-on-one save by the goalkeeper.

Our team may have been denied a goal by this foul, but the paying fans were cheated out of exciting action.

To highlight the problem the red carded player was applauded as he left the field.

Why, I will never know!

Another question that comes to mind.

Why do certain players overact when tackled by rolling over and over like a rolling pin as if they have been fatally shot?

On many occasions the tackle is fair and hard, and the ball has been won legally by the opposing team.

Maybe the player was trying to get the defender sent off, or his pride was hurt in losing the ball and finds rolling continually on the grass quite therapeutic.

In any case, when the referee waves play on, these players miraculously jump to their feet and recover.

On the more serious side, the danger of faking injury is that it can cause a chain reaction within the crowd which I have witnessed on at least one occasion.

I recall playing in an Arabic Cup competition a few years back at Marrickville when a player over-reacted to a tackle which flowed immediately to the crowd, causing a riot.

The match was abandoned and fortunately no one was killed or seriously injured due to the quick response by the police.

Again, another step back for football's image.

When it comes down to the bottom line I believe the general footballing public want their players to entertain by playing positive, imaginative football that is free flowing, and unhindered by unfair play.

Indonesia at Bruce Stadium tonight

BY GRAHAM COOKE

THE Indonesian national team's appearance in the ACT to play a Canberra representative side at Bruce stadium tonight, has capped a hectic fortnight for ACT Soccer Federation vice-president Steve Darby.

But Darby, who will be in charge of the home side, says there is no way the Federation would have even considered turning the offer down.

"Sure, it was short notice but if I was a player and heard an administrator had rejected a match like this I would go looking for him," he says.

Darby's squad was named after talks with the three leading club coaches in the area, Tom Sermanni (Canberra Croatia), Harry Williams (Inter Monaro) and Ron Smith (AIS).

His 17-strong list contains 12 from Croatia three from Monaro, one from the Institute and Marko Perinovic, who still lives in Canberra while playing for Sydney Olympic.

But he stressed there were only two certainties in his starting line-up. "One is Tom Sermanni, because, if you are playing professionals you have to have some people with professional experience against them. The other is Ned Zelic who, in my opinion, has the talent to go right to the top internationally."

ACTSF president Ron Watkins says the match will be used as a full-scale rehearsal for the game against Charlton on May 17.

"Believe me, we are taking both fixtures very seriously."

The first he knew about the possibility of a game was at the ASF annual meeting in Sydney.

"I heard Indonesia was planning a tour and said 'the ACT would like to be in that', and the next I heard was a call from the Federation offering us the fixture."

"It will be the first time the ACT has played a full national team at soccer."

There will be a number of promotions associated with the game including a special offer for Junior League players.

"Any kid who turns up in club strip accompanied by their coach will get in for nothing," Watkins says.

"Otherwise there will be a flat admission fee of $8 for adults and $4 for children — the same as we plan for Charlton."

The Indonesian announcement, coupled with the Charlton game and an ACT representative side's tour of Fiji later in year, means this soccer season will be the most active in the national capital since the early 1980s.

Ned Zelic captures attention in ACT

BY GRAHAM COOKE

CANBERRA Croatia coach Tom Sermanni is more than happy with the strength of his backline in the early season games.

With players of the calibre of Jason Dunn, Andrew Young and Doug Marcina it was always more than competent.

Now there has been an addition which has made it truly formidable — that of Ned Zelic.

There is really one question over this talented young man: "Why on earth did Sydney Croatia release him to return to Canberra?"

Zelic has played in a number of positions for the ACT club, performing creditably in all of them, but in most recent matches appears to have found a home as sweeper.

It is a probably too early to make a definitive judgement but on the basis of a handful of pre-season tournament and cup games the teenager seems destined to write his own ticket to international stardom.

Zelic, still a couple of months from his 19th birthday, was magnificent in the recent cup match against Polonia — his pin-point long ball forward from defence setting up the first goal.

Sermanni said of him afterwards: "He's giving us so many more options with his ability on the ball."

"As a result we are doing a lot of good, positive things and eventually we are going to break our opposition down."

Perhaps Croatia's only fear is that his exposure on the national stage in matches for Canberra against Indonesia and Charlton Athletic will prompt offers for his services the club will be unable to resist.

Hard time ahead for clubs in Cadbury State League

BY WALTER PLESS

WHITE Eagles will have to improve dramatically on its early season form if it is to retain the Cadbury State League soccer title.

The league champion, currently lying third in the table, was clearly missing strikers Richard Leszczynski and Brett Harwood in its opening games as the side struggled for goals.

Leszczynski has since reconsidered his decision to retire and is back in the fold, scoring the decisive goal in Eagle's 1-0 win over Hobart Juventus in the Cascade Summer Cup, but Harwood seems intent on joining Hobart Juventus.

Eagles showed a glimpse of its form of last year when it downed Juventus and it shouldn't be too long before Eugene Mycak's men are setting the pace in the league.

Hobart Juventus probably has greater depth than any other team and once coach Frank Maccarone decides on his strongest line-up, Juventus will be a formidable team and a definite possibility for the championship.

Steve Walker is undoubtedly the find of the season and he has scored in every appearance for Juventus to date.

Originally from England, Walker played in New Zealand before coming to Tasmania. Juventus snapped him up from under the noses of Caledonian and Hobart City.

Juventus has cover in all departments, including the vital position of goalkeeper, where Brett Williams, Neil Connell and Frank Mainella will vie for the position of number one custodian.

The fact that Juventus has more than adequate cover for every position makes it one of the favourites to emerge at the head of the pack at the end of the gruelling 24-match league programme.

Ian Parker, one of the most talented English players ever to have come to Tasmania, is player-coach of Caledonian this season and Parker's strong point is that he leads by example.

Caledonian has been frustrated so far by poor finishing and sheer ill-fortune, but the tenacity and fitness of its players should see results soon.

Olympia-SBT Bank is one of the high-profile clubs off the field but Ken Morton's senior squad is certainly not the strongest the club has had.

Despite its weaknesses, the team leads the Cadbury League section of the Cascade Summer Cup competition and may even reach the final.

Croatia-Glenorchy has virtually a new team but, if anything, it is weaker and less experienced than last year's side, which finished last.

There is potential, however, and coach Karl Pless, who has an excellent track record with youth teams, should get the best out of his players.

Croatia may yet cause a few surprises this season.

Brendan Lakoseljac, Sacha Puclin and Marijan Begovic are among the most promising youngsters in the State, and when they eventually team up with the likes of Nenad Zajec, Robbie Baric and Neil Thomas, Croatia's prospects should improve.

Ulverstone showed great promise last year and Alex McDonald's team is now showing the rest of the field a clean pair of heels.

Whether it can continue to do so is open to debate, but Andrew Howe, John, Tom and 'Snowy' Compagne and David Mitchell rank among the best players in Tasmania.

Launceston Juventus is always a difficult side to beat, but coach Peter Savill readily admits his side is lacking a reliable goalscorer.

Devonport City has always been noted for its enterprise both on and off the field and things should be just the same under new coach, Tommy McKenna, one of the former great players at the club.

Burnie United also has a new man at the helm, Ray Parke, who joined the club from Devonport.

It has a stronger squad than last season, and it still has that prince of goalscorers, Mike Denton, the former Australian international, but avoiding relegation will surely be Burnie's main priority.

Victorian State League Player of the Year Velimir Kupresak receiving congratulations from John Dimtsis last year. The Victorian star did not enjoy the best of seasons in his first year with Sydney Croatia, but he is likely to improve next season under coach Tony Vrzina.

Melbourne Croatia struggle in Youth League South

BY ROY HAY

LAST Wednesday night, leaders Melbourne Croatia had to struggle to gain a 3-3 draw with South Melbourne Hellas Blue at Middle Park.

In the first half, Hellas ran off to a 3-1 lead through Vince de la Plaza, Peter Kyrkilis and Mina Teloniatis, but a penalty just before half-time brought Croatia back into the game.

Croatia dominated in the second period but could only manage one more goal.

North Geelong gained a well-merited point from league leader Melbourne Croatia when it forced a 1-1 draw at Elcho Park on Sunday.

North led in the first half, when John Hrkac, coach turned player for the day, fired over a cross.

Miro Stosic headed it on and Adrian Cervinski scored with one of his specialities, the overhead volley.

North had much more of the play in the first half, but could not add to its lead.

The second half saw Melbourne Croatia up the pace, but Vinko Saric and his fellow defenders kept the visiting forwards at bay, and young Josip Skoko and Ivan Colak grafted hard in midfield.

Croatia finally broke through in 56 minutes, when a long ball forward found Hus Skenderovic who put Joe Bacak away.

Altona Gate regained second spot with a 2-1 away win at Olympic Village against Heidelberg United.

Con Sindrikanis put the home team ahead in the first half, but after a couple of telling substitutions at the interval, Altona Gate powered away with goals by Ivo Kutlesovski and Sasha Simovski.

Geelong City lost 2-1 at Skinner Reserve against Sunshine George Cross.

City had a good first half, though Mitchell Cattermole of Georgie hit the post with the only effort which beat Grant Carr in that period.

The 16-year-old has played in every game this year for City and showed his versatility with a fine match in goal.

Andrew Harris had a shot which just cleared the bar and Cedo Rakic had the ball behind the keeper only for a defender to clear off the line.

Georgie brought on George Alevisos and Athan Zacharias at half-time, and Zacharias responded with two goals which set City rocking.

City recovered and Con Gaitanis fired over a swinging cross which drew Jimmy Dimovski from his goals.

A few minutes later David Fleming's perfect cross was headed goalwards by Fitzpatrick, but Dimovski got a finger-tip to it at full stretch to force the ball out for a corner-kick.

Melbourne City JUST lost 2-1 at home at Clifton Hill.

All the goals came in last frenetic seven minutes.

Jim Maskos gave Clifton Hill the lead in 83 minutes and Peter Psarros made it two a couple of minutes later.

JUST then was awarded a penalty and Tony Beevinovski scored, but there was no time for JUST to get on terms.

The loss means that JUST has blown its chances of a top four spot.

Bad weather handicaps juniors

BY KEITH GILMOUR

THE drop in numbers of soccer juniors in the huge Sydney nursery associations has been mainly attributed to last season's wash-outs.

This picture emerged from an ASW check of a cross section of Sydney association secretaries.

Laurie Simpson (Bankstown), Kay Iredale (Gladesville) and Peter Minigle (St George) all felt that the big wet had caused the numbers of players to decrease.

Simpson said: "We are down 57 teams, and that also affects our finances."

"This season's weather is not helping us so far, but we will be working hard to recover our numbers for 1991."

But wet weather and the resultant closing of grounds wasn't the only reason.

Manly Warringah's Syd Russell pointed to the aging to the population in Warringah Shire.

Frank Broughton of Canterbury drew attention to an alleged reluctance of the local council to give soccer fair use of its grounds, and Ku-ring-gai's John Hargreaves to the need for extra dedicated team managers and coaches.

Ian Leaper of Macarthur said: "Somehow, we juggled the fixtures and grounds last year to provide football for the players.

"I think that was the point that helped us to retain the same number of players this year."

It was generally found in various districts that other competitor sports have faced the same decline in playing numbers that apply to soccer.

The indications are that the more an association managed to play in 1989, the better its numbers have been this year.

Canterbury's Broughton has a big question...

"Bennett Park's two soccer grounds were closed by Canterbury Council, but the adjoining rugby league pitch was in use Saturday and Sunday."

"Can we be given a fair go?" he asked.

Gladesville dropped 35 teams, but it might have been worse had not the Association played the most games it could in the wet last season.

Manly Warringah has received support from Warringah Shire Council, but Ku-ring-gai has a problem.

"Some councils have responded to the few school terms with April and July holidays by starting and ending the winter season later."

"Others have stayed with the traditional April/August."

"It's a headache we could do without." Maybe the hint of a dry winter from some weather forecaster could have a ring of truth about it.

Certainly the NSW associations — the whole 37 of them — are hoping so.

It is a great pleasure to report that SBS Television staffer Joe Di Meglio has received "all clear" reports on his health, following his recent serious operation.

Australian Soccer Weekly readers will recall that he was previously layout artist and a prolific writer with the nation's top ranking soccer paper before joining SBS.

In fact, it is not long since he visited Mexico as the only reporter attached to the Australian Indoor Futsal team for the 1989 Pacific Cup. Joe resumed his duties at SBS on Tuesday.

Portuguese-sponsored clubs making a big impression

BY PAUL GOODWIN

THE three Portuguese clubs in Second Division have begun to make their mark, with all three sides disposing of quality opposition last weekend.

Dulwich Hill overcame a rejuvenated Granville-Chile at Arlington Oval, with last year's leading scorer Dennis Duarte grabbing two late goals to ensure that the 3-1 win went Madeira's way.

A brilliant save from Kevin Farrar in the early stages from the head of David Holmes prevented Chile from taking the lead and the first half remained scoreless.

Jim Ziras put Madeira in front in the 58th minute with a cheeky back heeler, but a solo run by Chile's new signing from St George, Robert Esposito, ended with a 25-metre bullet-like shot which brought the sides level again, 10 minutes later.

It was left to Duarte to do the damage, beating the offside trap in the 82nd and the same man stole in between the Granville keeper Trostrel and sweeper Willie Piriz to gain possession and find the net in the final moments of the game.

Sunshine

The sun shone on Waverley Oval sufficiently for the Eastern Suburbs derby between unbeaten Waverley and the form team, Rosebery, to go ahead on Saturday.

The rain returned during the match, but did not interfere with the teams' excellent display of entertaining soccer.

Rosebery eventually ran out 3-2 winners, but left it very late indeed to seal it.

Waverley stunned the visitors with a perfectly executed goal within four minutes.

A cross field pass by Joe Watson found Steve Milloy on the left flank and the clever winger made progress before cutting the ball back from the byline, after getting the better of the fullback.

His timely cross was met at the near post by the head of Barry Walker, who made his run with expert precision.

Milloy was a marked man from that stage and little more was seen of the Waverley strikers during the rest of the first half as Rosebery attacked relentlessly, but without reward.

An 11th minute cross by Ercan Osman eluded both Jimmy Keane and Ricky Somboli racing in at the far post, when a goal looked certain and brother Erkin Osman put Tony Heery through in the 29th, only for the hardened campaigner to put the ball wide when only a few metres from his target.

In the last minute of the first stanza, a well rehearsed free kick brought the equaliser.

Erkin Osman pushed the ball wide to the left where Somboli cut the ball back and 20-year-old Paul Harriott picked his spot with a far post header.

The fresh-faced Harriott, a former school-boy player with Burnley and originally from England's North East, has begun the season brilliantly and went on to get a hat-trick.

In the second half Wotherspoon caused havoc with a cross which had to be booted off the Rosebery line, but the same man was on hand to put the ball under the keeper's body a minute later, when Barry Walker nodded on a rare Milloy cross.

Harriott somehow contrived to miss turning a 64th minute cross into a goal, shooting wide from only metres.

He did manage, however, to get onto a long searching ball out of defence by Erkin Osman in the 78th to bring the sides level once more.

With two minutes remaining the Second Division's runaway leading goalscorer sent his club's supporters into raptures by running onto a lofted ball from Ricky Somboli, round-

Having begun his Australian career with Pagewood, before linking up with Rosebery Portugal last year, Harriott appears to be set for a very exciting future.

Waverley lost their unbeaten record in the process, while the visitors extended to four their run of wins and now appear to be back to the form which carried them to an impressive Third Division title last term.

Stubborn

Central Coast broke through at last at Plum Park, overcoming a stubborn Manly-Warringah with a lone 20th minute goal from Andrew Ollier. Last year's Third Division runners-up look set to make a steady climb up the ladder, now that they have picked up better form.

Their lost striker Derek Caiskey with a cruciate ligament injury incurred in a training game, but Kerry Caban is working his way back to full fitness through the under 19 side and his return will help considerably.

Todd Roberts, with Russell Drysdale, another local who spent some time in First Division with Newcastle Rosebud, has also made a steady return after a two year lay-off and contributed with Drysdale to the goal.

A good ball from the Coast 'keeper found Drysdale, who sent Todd Roberts on his way and the resultant cross by Terry Mason was volleyed home by former The Entrance team-mate Andrew Ollier.

Central Coast were particularly pleased with their showing, given the absence of Player-of-the-Year Stephen Kirby through suspension and the other injuries to key players.

Upset

Petersham sprung an upset at Ernie Smith Reserve, defeating the previously unbeaten Southern Districts 1-0.

Although the home side had a greater part of the game, they failed to put away their chances.

The two goalkeepers played a significant role in the result: Van der Leeden pulling off some super saves to deny Districts and Peter Berry making one fatal error by leaving his line too late, thus allowing full back David Keven to get his head to a Danny Zannola free kick pumped into the box from just inside the half.

Zannola also cleared a Birol-Sertbas shot off the Petersham line, but Sertbas missed other chances, while Filipovic was guilty of hesitating too long when in close scoring positions.

Gladesville and Fairfield City played a 1-1 draw at Knight Park in an even match which Gladesville could have wrapped up in the dying stages.

When Remyle Gallaway was brought down by goalie David Griffiths in the 15th minute, Gary Hastie was able to score from the penalty spot.

Paul Mamo came on as a substitute for Gladesville and in the 26th minute, following a corner, he sent over a second cross which Graeme Williamson met with a powerful header.

Bernie Voloder missed a couple of chances late in the game and a Fairfield defender resorted to sitting on the ball to prevent it crossing the line, after a period of intense late pressure from Gladesville.

CLEAN UP VITAL

Genuine football supporters must stand up and demand the clean up of the harmful mess caused by the ethnic rivalries that regularly drag down the greatest team sport and stop its progress in Australia.

Mr John Constantine and ASF commission-ers must have the courage to implement reforms and eliminate all the ethnic names from the National League, even at the cost of substantial reduction of crowds, which will be temporary.

They should relegate to the interurban leagues the clubs who refuse to subscribe to a new set of guidelines.

National and state football clubs should be able to cut across ethnic and cultural lines, and have support based on the local resident population, from their allocated areas from Third Division up.

Otherwise we can see a repeat of watching an Australian soccer final and the farce of Olympic and Marconi supporters holding Greek and Italian flags.

And the continuous saga of regular incidents like the one at Barton Park, with origins in its ethno-political past.

For soccer's sake in Australia, please make your own flags and badges, and promote the wonderful game of real football that not even a minority of the ethnic communities watch.

Schools break record

THE Commonwealth Bank sponsored Bill Turner Cup this year attracted a record entry of over 440 schools.

Covering under 15 teams, the Bill Turner Cup has the advantage of catering for all sectors of the education system.

It is to be hoped that the weather settles down and enables all games to be played.

CANBERRA

THE squad may be different but Canberra Croatia assistant coach Ivan Gruicic is determined the standards he set for the club's reserve team last season will be maintained and even improved upon.

In 1989 Croatia finished runner-up to Melita Eagles in the NSW State League under-19 competition then beat the champions on their own ground in the final of the top four play offs.

"I have no doubt I have more skilful players to choose from this time," he says.

Age restrictions have left him with just four of last season's squad.

But an intensive recruiting drive has netted a number of quality youngsters, including one of the brightest prospects in ACT junior soccer, 16-year-old Andy Ravanello, backed by Jason Swan from Belconnen United, Takis Velanis (Downer Olympic), Claudio Pulombi (Juventus) and a quartet from Croatia's ACT League youth side, Johnny Simic, Pero Konzul — "another Marko Perinovic in the making" — Mladen Rogic — "Anton Meredjan."

Northern News

BY BOB DICKEY

JULY can not come soon enough for a representative team of under 17s from the Newcastle Amateur Soccer Association.

Meeting

The Northern Branch is anxiously awaiting the next meeting of the Australian Junior Soccer Council, which is to take place in June.

It will be at this meeting that a decision is made regarding the nomination of two teams from NSW into the National titles.

One team is to comprise Sydney players and the other to be the NSW country players.

If accepted, this will be a major step forward for the many players in country NSW.

Branch

Many teams are now gearing up for the branch championships on the June long weekend.

The locations of this year's championships are: U11 at Neilson Park Lismore, U12 Macquarie, U13 Danger St Fields Kempsey, U14 Rushforth Park Grafton, U15 Lockinvar, U17 Newcastle Phoenix Grounds.

The senior players will also contest the Branch Amateur Cup, this year to be held at Killarney Vale on the Central Coast — nominations will close on May 20.

If interested, contact Margaret Ford of the Central Coast Association.

The team is to take part in the 25th anniversary of the founding of Singapore by competing in a Youth Soccer Tournament.

The nucleus of the squad is from the under 16 team of last year which was undefeated during an inter-association youth league, organised under the auspices of the Amateur Soccer Federation of Northern NSW (ASFNSW) and played between three of their member associations, Newcastle, Macquarie and Hunter districts.

The team, which come from Raymond

Terrace and Adamstown Rosebud juniors

— includes Richard Low, Tod Ware, Stephen Roach, John Mulley, George Scorgie, Todd Fitness, Darren Goodwin, Paul Young, Andrew Martinelli, Adrian Ugray, Manuel Periera, Justin Beatty and Selwyn Hurst.

Tour leader is Wal Hurst, coach Ian Rushton and manager Mike Bobbins.

Their preparations had a major set-back due to the recent devastating earthquake and floods which struck the Newcastle area, and also affected their fund-raising efforts.

To offset the heavy costs involved, they are undertaking car washes, guessing competitions and pie drives along with appeals for sponsorships and donations.

Further information can be obtained from John Low on 049 51 1186 ah.

Nominations

So far eight nominations have been received for this year's 'Big Dog' carnival for under 10s to be played in the Newcastle area.

Nominations for this popular event can be obtained from the administrative officer, Max Norden on 049 304 365 (fax 049 304 575).

The carnival will be held on the July 7/8, so get in early and plan your year.

Wheatley

Negotiations have commenced with Robbie Wheatley, the Federation's promotion and development officer, to visit various schools in the Northern branch.

An anticipated date is around May — although only tentative.

Robbie's appointment is a great step forward in the promotion of soccer in both metropolitan and country areas of NSW.

Skill development is way to go

BY NSW DIRECTOR DAVID LEE

TO undergo 30 hours of skill development or have six hours of competitive play?

That is a question that 11 and 12-year-old children are being forced to make.

In a state of 160,000 players, there are controlled Skill Development and Apprenticeship Schemes available free of charge to approximately 35 players.

This includes the St George, Marconi and NSW Soccer Federation Junior Academy.

If tournaments are continually organised in school holidays, when are these players going to learn their skills?

Well, never according to some coaches and officials.

Children are being instructed "they have to play for the district" in these tournaments.

What rubbish! An 11 or 12-year-old does not have to play anywhere.

Is he better off receiving 30 hours skill and playing?

Or competing to earn the management another trophy?

Who are they putting first?

The child's development and future, or their own ego and ambitions?

Any coach with the child's future at heart would be encouraging the child to attend the coaching scheme.

The elite player would benefit and one of the regular reserves would have a chance to play for a change.

DAVID LEE

A junior coach's objective is to improve players not win games.

If this is not his aim or the reason, then he missed the message on the coaching course.

The Fiji connection of Thornleigh under 16 coach Francis Mudaliar resulted in the club heading off for a 10 day Fiji tour over the Easter period. Mudaliar has had a few years as team coach, and influenced the boys and their parents to raise funds for the trip. They will play against three high schools, including Marist Brothers in Suva, which Mudaliar himself attended.

Canberra Juniors

CANBERRA City Concordia has become a major sponsor of the Majura junior club, with the aim of establishing a career path for youngsters from mini-soccer to seniors, City's sports director, Alan Cringle, says.

"As well as providing much needed finance to the juniors, the coaching staff of Canberra City will conduct training sessions and encourage older players interested in coaching to become involved with Majura," he says.

"In return Majura will carry our logo on their playing strips and generally promote City among players and parents."

City's long established headquarters, the City Club, has opened new headquarters in City Walk.

"We believe both these moves will improve our position as the leading club in the northern area of Canberra," Cringle says.

NSW Country reps camp

COUNTRY representatives were to the fore over Easter.

The under 14, 15 and 16 year groups were coached by State director David Lee and staff at the outstanding Wollaroi Kinross campus at Orange.

Then for four days commencing April 17 the U15s are all at the same venue for few days.

In charge is former Australian under 16 coach, Vic Dalgleish.

THIS year's under 15 national championships will be hosted by the Macarthur District Soccer Football Association.

The series, in which all states and territories participate, will be held at Lynwood Park, Campbelltown, from July 7/15.

The best of the players will have the chance to be in the Australian squad for the under 16 World Cup.

Macarthur secretary Ian Leaper said: "We are arranging billets for 144 players, and officials have already been booked into Macklin Lodge."

"Staging these titles is a first for the City of Campbelltown."

"We have set out to get help from the business sector, and I will be glad to hear from any interested companies on 046 27 1691."

- Olympiakos club president Agryis Saliarelis has been banned from all Greek stadia for three months for striking a photographer after Olympiakos' Greek league match against arch-rivals Panathinaikos.
- Former Algerian national team coach Kamel Lemoui has been appointed at the helm of neighbouring Libya. Lemoui will coach Libya's top club side, Ittihad Tripoli, as well as the national team.
- Rene Rydlewicz became the youngest player ever to appear in the East German First Division when the 16-year-old striker took the field for FC Berlin (ex-Dynamo) against Magdeburg.
- Vitesse and PSV Eindhoven will meet in the Dutch Cup final on April 25.
- Vasco de Gama led the Rio championship at the half-way mark to win the symbolic title of "autumn champions".
- Rio club Fluminense have hired a new coach — Paulo Emilio — who started with an impressive 3-0 win against Americano.
- Northern Irish international Liam Coyle, 21, won't play again after breaking his right knee. The Derry City striker underwent two unsuccessful operations in Paris. Coyle was rated the greatest Ulster talent since George Best.
- Real Sociedad are so pleased with their Liverpool signing John Aldridge that they are ready to sign Aldo's Irish national team-mate Ray Houghton. They are hoping that a $2.5 million bid will tempt Liverpool into a deal for the 29-year-old.
- Italy's building unions are threatening a series of strikes unless the World Cup organisers improve pay and safety standards for men racing against time to prepare the World Cup venues. The unions says 18 workers have been killed in World Cup construction so far.
- Romanian Sports Minister Mircea Angelescu says Romanian players may not be as free as they think to sign lucrative contracts with foreign clubs after the World Cup. Angelescu claims Romanian football cannot afford to ruin its domestic soccer by allowing everyone to leave the country. But one man sure to be allowed to leave is Steaua star Gheorghe Hagi, who is Milan-bound.
- Pele is predicting a Brazilian win in the 1990 World Cup. The game's greatest superstar has been touring the USA trying to step up public awareness of soccer in the run-up to the 1990 finals and the 1994 competition, when the Americans are hosts. Pele says Brazil has two vital elements which put the World Cup within Brazil's reach — a tight defence and several key players operating in Europe. And Pele's tip for surprise World Cup outsiders — Spain.
- West Ham sold Eire striker David Kelly to Leicester for a giveaway $640,000.
- Everton's Northern Irish international Norman Whiteside has been charged with drinking offences. He was arrested as he drove through Liverpool and held in a cell after refusing to take a breath test.
- Crystal Palace have failed in bids for Paul Walsh and Mitchell Thomas from Tottenham. Neither player wanted to join them.
- Edmund Conen, centre-forward of Germany's 1934 World Cup team, has died at the age of 75. Between 1934 and 1942, he played 20 times for the national team.
- Rico Steinmann is the latest East German player to join a West German club. The Karl Marx Stadt striker has moved to FC Nurnberg.

Macari loses appeal

FORMER West Ham manager Lou Macari lost his appeal against his censure-ship by the English Football Association for breaching rules on betting while in charge at Second Division club Swindon.

But FA head Bert Millichip, who chaired the appeal hearing, said the authorities had yet to decide whether to reduce the $2,000 fine imposed on the censured former Scotland international in February.

"We have the power to increase or decrease the punishment or to leave things as originally decided," he said.

"When the decision is announced we believe it will be the end of the matter."

Macari had appealed against both the fine and censure, arguing that even a token punishment was too much when innocent.

Lou Macari

Swindon chairman Brian Hillier, banned from football for six months for betting against his team in an FA Cup tie two years ago, also had his appeal turned down.

ITALIAN BONUSES

ITALIAN players may earn up to $500,000 each if they qualify for the World Cup final and win Italy a fourth world title.

Antonio Matarrese, the president of the Italian Soccer Federation, said an agreement on World Cup money prizes was negotiated with the players' representatives, but he refused to confirm any of the details.

The agreement includes prizemoney for all 22 national team players for each step forward in the World Cup — qualification for the second round, quarterfinals and semi-finals.

A bonus will be added in case of victory in the prestigious competition.

PORTUGUESE MATCH AT THE SUMMIT

Swede Jonas Thern, of Benfica, is isolated in the midst of the Porto defence during the recent 0-0 league draw in Portugal. Benfica will reach the European Champions' Cup final if they eliminate Marseille tonight.

Italy's magnificent quartet

COUNTDOWN

BY BARRY MOODY

ONE of Europe's greatest defenders, a highly superstitious goalkeeper and two menacing opportunists up-front will spearhead Italy's bid to win the World Cup on their own turf.

One of the favourites, Italy will field a mainly young line-up, moulded by coach Azeglio Vicini from the ashes of the ageing team dethroned as world champions in 1986.

But four men will give the side maturity and stability at the back and a sharp cutting edge in attack.

They are goalkeeper Walter Zenga and sweeper Franco Baresi, both 29, winger Roberto Donadoni 26 and striker Gianluca Vialli, 25.

Of the four, Baresi is the most distinguished — universally praised as one of the world's greatest sweepers, an inspired playmaker who is as dangerous in launching breakaway attacks as he is coldly efficient in closing down star strikers.

Baresi has spent his entire career with Italian league leaders AC Milan, joining a youth side when he was 13 and taking the place in the hearts of the side's fanatical fans once held by the legendary Gianni Rivera.

"We will never give him up, you can't surrender the flag," Milan's owner, media magnate Silvio Berlusconi, once said.

Milan coach Arrigo Sacchi rates Baresi as the world's best libero.

"His coordination is as perfect as a Swiss watch," he said.

Shunned by former Italian coach Enzo Bearzot, who left him out of the Mexico side in 1986, Baresi is a protege of Vicini like most of the present team.

Baresi's contemporary Zenga plays for city rivals Inter Milan but the personalities of the two men are as different as chalk and cheese.

Baresi is modest and hates talking to the press; Zenga is flamboyant, has a weakness for pretty women and massive motorbikes and appears frequently in television advertisements.

He missed his first call-up for the national side in 1985 because he could not be found, apparently because he was involved in what the papers called "a sentimental adventure".

An aggressive, emotional player prone to yelling abuse at defenders who make mistakes, Zenga says his goal is "like my house. When they get the ball past me I feel as angry as someone who has been burgled."

A favourite of Inter's fiercest fans, Zenga has a deeply superstitious streak which prompts him to go through a ritual dance when he gets on the pitch, pirouetting, crossing himself and kissing middle fingers of each hand.

Zenga is a regular in the national side and is seen as the heir of his great predecessor and former World Cup captain Dino Zoff, despite the contrast with Zoff's placid personality.

Swinging rapidly between midfield and attack, Roberto Donadoni is likely to be a nightmare to mark for Italy's opponents.

But his terrier-like play has made him prone to injury and in 1988 he nearly died in a European Cup match against Yugoslav club Red Star, when he choked on his tongue after a collision.

Unlike Baresi, Donadoni and Zenga, Italian national striker Gianluca Vialli does not play for one of the great Italian teams.

His Sampdoria have never won the league despite occupying a steady position in the First Division.

Smiling and easy-going, he is happy living near the sea in Genoa and refuses to budge, forcing Sampdoria to turn down a $13 million transfer offer from Milan in 1987.

Powerful and athletic, Vialli is known for flying overhead kicks and acrobatic headers.

He has a gift for freeing himself of heavy marking to steal a shock goal at a vital moment.

Argentina's World Cup hopes All up to Maradona

BY REX GOWAR OF REUTER

ARGENTINA's hopes of retaining the World Cup will depend heavily on the form, fitness and mood of their captain and inspiration Diego Maradona.

The soccer genius who rose from a Buenos Aires slum to become a multi-millionaire was the star of the Mexico finals four years ago when he roused a disciplined and skilled, if unspectacular, Argentina to triumph.

"I dreamt I would score (against Cameroon)," said Caniggia. "It would be exactly a year after the goal I got against Uruguay in Goiania. I'm superstitious, I believe in those things."

But Bilardo may have difficulty building a defence as solid as that which conceded only five goals in seven games in Mexico.

Goalkeeper Nery Pumpido will have to be in top shape for his third World Cup finals.

A reserve for 1978 World Cup winner Ubaldo Fillol in Spain in 1982, Pumpido recovered from a road accident in which his wife was nearly killed to win his place in the Mexico team.

A resilient player who won four titles in 1986, including the Argentine, South American and world club trophy with River Plate, Pumpido came back from another freak accident in 1987.

During a River Plate practice session, he caught his wedding ring in a hook on a crossbar, after jumping to make a save, and he all but ripped off his finger. A specialist replaced it and Pumpido was back training within two months.

Bilardo's enthusiasm is the quality which most enables him to communicate with his players.

In 1986, he talked Maradona virtually to the top with all-night discussion on tactics assisted by match videos on table cutlery.

Bilardo keeps in constant touch with his captain.

He visits him regularly in Naples, discusses his plans and encourages him as he prepares for the finals.

DIEGO MARADONA: he will carry Argentina's World Cup hopes — again.

National coach Carlos Bilardo is confident he will be able to count on a fully fit and motivated Maradona, despite the player's many off-field problems and quarrels this season.

"I'm more and more convinced that when he finally joins the national team it won't be difficult in the month before (the finals) to produce the best Diego, the one we all want," he said.

"Diego is a model of commitment to the colours he defends."

Maradona and several of Argentina's other key men, including new wing sensation Claudio Caniggia, play in Italy.

This will enable them to feel at home, particularly in Naples if Maradona's Napoli win the league title.

Argentina face the Soviet Union and Romania in Naples in their Group B games after meeting Cameroon in the opening match in Milan on June 8.

Caniggia, a lightning-fast striker, emerged as a brilliant prospect during the 1987 South American championship in Buenos Aires.

But his fifth goal for Argentina against Uruguay in the 1989 championship was the nation's last, a depressing record the world champions will be eager to quickly put behind them in Italy.

Caniggia is returning to form for Atalanta after a mixed first season in Italy with Verona was clouded by a broken leg and press allegations that he liked the high life.

Caniggia is aware of what a good World Cup would mean for his future.

"I'm conscious that it's there, in the World Cup, where the future of many of us will be decided," he said.

Playmaking duties will be the main responsibility of Jorge Burruchaga of French club Nantes, if he fully recovers from the injuries which have plagued him since the Mexico finals, and veteran Jorge Valdano.

Valdano, like Burruchaga, scored in the 3-2 win over West Germany in the 1986 final.

He believes his teammate could have an even better World Cup in Italy.

"I'm certain Burruchaga will have a great World Cup, even better than in Mexico," he said.

Valdano, 34, retired from soccer two years ago after a long bout of hepatitis brought his Real Madrid career to an end.

Bilardo, however, having failed to find an adequate replacement, persuaded him to make a comeback exclusively for the national team.

Rojas ban stays

JOAO Havelange, president of FIFA, says he has no intention of lifting the lifetime ban on Chilean goalkeeper Roberto Rojas, a newspaper reported.

Havelange reportedly made the remark during a meeting at the Sao Paulo Soccer Federation.

Rojas was suspended from international competition for life for faking

The scoreboard tells the story as last year's World Cup qualifier was halted after the controversial "faking" incident by Chilean keeper Roberto Rojas.

Rojas' wife sent Havelange a letter asking him to pardon her husband and noting that they are good Catholics, the newspaper "O Estado de Sao Paulo" reported.

"I responded I was Catholic too, that I pray, but I try not to sin so I won't try to ask for pardons," Havelange was quoted an injury after a flare thrown by a fan landed near him during last September's World Cup qualifying match with Brazil in Rio.

The Chilean team walked off the field after the incident, with Brazil ahead 1-0. The final score was upped to 2-0 after FIFA ruled that Chile had "abandoned the field".

WORLD CUP REFEREES

WORLD Cup referees have been told to speed up play during this summer's finals in Italy and book players for deliberate handball.

"FIFA has told us to pay great attention to fouls and to interruptions — the game must be speeded up," Italy's Tullio Lanese said after a three-day working session for the 36 referees, including Australia's Richard Lorenc.

Luigi Agnolin, the second Italian referee selected by FIFA, said rules would be applied "to the letter" during the 52-match tournament.

He said deliberate handball would be punished with a yellow card and referees would not tolerate protests by players.

"Referees will be inflexible during the World Cup," Agnolin said.

The referees from 34 countries underwent stringent fitness tests including individual timed races over various distances and a 12-minute non-stop fast running session.

Fiorentina's Nappi — scored a vital UEFA Cup away goal at Werder Bremen.

117 MILLION PLAYERS!

FIFA, has 117 million registered players around the world with almost half coming from Asia, general secretary Joseph Blatter claimed.

He warned the statistics did not give a full overview of the popularity of the game since it excluded adepts who play in school, military, police and corporate leagues around the world.

But even if Asia has 54 million registered players — mostly in China and India — the continent only provides two teams for the 24-nation World Cup competition.

In comparison, Europe, with 28 million registered players, has 14 nations taking part.

South America, with 16 million players linked to FIFA, has four nations taking part, including defending champions Argentina.

North and Central America and the Caribbean have 11.5 million players under the wings of FIFA and are represented by the United States and Costa Rica.

Five million FIFA-affiliated players are in Africa, which has Cameroon and Egypt at the World Cup.

"We have a whole continent and we have only two countries," said Cameroon manager Jean Manga.

"The British Isles alone have three teams."

Finally, Oceania has 2.5 million registered players but not one country made it through the qualifications.

founded 1904

It was the first such exhaustive poll of the FIFA member federations ever and Blatter could provide few details on the historic development in popularity.

Television is expected to spread the game to an unprecedented number of people during the month-long World Cup this summer, Blatter said.

For the Mexico 1986 World Cup, the accumulative viewership of the 52 matches stood at 12.8 billion, and was expected to rise to 15 billion this year "because of the spread of television sets" around the world, said Blatter.

In comparison, the Seoul 1988 Olympic Games in South Korea attracted a viewership of 9.5 billion.

UEFA plan Cup changes

EUROPEAN soccer's governing body is to consider proposals to scrap the seeding arrangements for club competitions in favour of a points system next season.

UEFA spokesman Ruedi Rothenbuehler said a UEFA study group had proposed scrapping the existing system of seeding clubs that reached the semi-finals of one of the three competitions in the past five seasons.

Instead, a new table would list points scored in all rounds of UEFA competitions in the previous five seasons.

Clubs would be awarded one point for a draw, two for a win, a bonus point for reaching the quarter-finals and an additional bonus point for each subsequent round.

The total number of points would be divided by the number of matches played to create the basis for a ranking list.

The new system would rank teams from 1-32 in the Champions' Cup and Cup Winners' Cup.

There would be two groups of 16 teams with the overall top 16 kept apart in the first round.

Teams in the second round in the two competitions would be ranked 1 to 16 with two sections of eight. The top eight would be paired with the bottom section in each competition.

UEFA Cup teams would be ranked 1-64 and divided into eight groups of eight each.

Two of the top 16 clubs would be in each group with six of the lower-ranked clubs.

The second round would comprise four groups of eight clubs and four of those ranked in the top 16 in each group.

The procedure for the third round would be the same as that for second round matches in the other competi-

Rothenbuehler said the proposals would be presented to the executive committee for approval before UEFA's congress in Malta later this month.

FENCE DOWN

PERIMETRE fencing at Sheffield Wednesday's Hillsborough ground where 95 fans were crushed to death a year ago is to be taken down at the end of the season.

Sheffield City Council is to act on recommendations in a report on the tragedy on April 15 last year during an FA Cup semi-final between Liverpool and Nottingham Forest.

The council decided that fences at the ground of the city's other league club Sheffield United would also be removed.

A dramatic incident from the recent top of the table clash in Italy between Napoli and Sampdoria.

Lazaroni headed for Fiorentina?

BRAZIL's coach Sebastiao Lazaroni said he was in contact with Fiorentina, but denied making a deal to take charge of the Italian First Division side next season.

"There are only contacts with Fiorentina, there is nothing firm," Lazaroni said in this central Italian city where Brazil will stay from May 20-29 during their build-up to the World Cup finals.

"I'm Brazil's coach up to the World Cup, then we'll see. I like Italy and its football," added Lazaroni, whose was touring Italy to finalise Brazil's World Cup arrangements.

Fiorentina sacked coach Bruno Giorgi three weeks ago, replacing him with 1982 World Cup player Francesco Graziani, seen as a guest player with Apia in 1988.

STASI'S SCANDAL

The East German secret police pocketed the $2.5 million which West German soccer team Bayer Leverkusen paid for East German international Andreas Thom, a West German newspaper has claimed.

Thom, a 24-year-old midfielder, moved from Dynamo Berlin to Leverkusen in December in the first East-West German soccer transfer.

"Bild am Sonntag" said Dynamo Berlin's communist club president asked for the money to be sent straight to a hard-currency bank account which the paper said belonged to the hated Stasi secret police.

The club, since renamed FC Berlin, was funded by the Stasi, whose disgraced chief Erich Mielke was a big fan until the secret police were disbanded after last year's revolution.

Now no one at the club can trace the money, "Bild am Sonntag" said.

The mass-circulation paper quoted club chairman Juergen Bogs as saying they could not find out who controlled the account or whether the money was still in it.

Team officials were not available to comment on the report.

Brazilian bust-up

BRAZILIAN sensation Bebeto may have angered his strike partner Careca by suggesting that Dutch rival Marco van Basten is the better forward.

CARECA — miffed because Brazilian teammate Bebeto rates Marco van Basten higher?

Van Basten is currently topping the Italian scoring charts with AC Milan and winning all the awards.

And that is why Bebeto — real name Jose Roberto Gama Oliveira — may strike a sore point when he claims: "Marco will be the best striker in the competition."

He adds: "There is certainly reasons to be worried about the threat from Holland — they are a strong side."

"My other tips are Italy, West Germany and Uruguay."

Bebeto has found some prolific form for Vasco da Gama in the Brazilian top flight and could leave his own mark on the World Cup in Italy.

He certainly doesn't lack confidence and even suggests that the current Brazil team is the greatest ever.

That's no small boast considering that during Pele's day they won the World Cup three times.

"Brazil have more chance of winning the World Cup this year than we have ever had," says the striker.

"Our footballers are always very good technically but this team is even better. Our defence has learned to be more alert and we are all determined to be successful by helping one another."

"If we work for each other we can save energy collectively and be fresh for the whole tournament. That's the way we can win it."
